Caroline Christens USS Kennedy

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Little Caroline Kennedy stood by today to christen a mammoth aircraft carrier named for her martyred father, and President Johnson offered a prayer that the USS John F. Kennedy's years "will be years of peace."

Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her 6-year-old son, John, were on hand, too, with a throng of other family members and thousands of spectators for the ceremonial naming of the 1,000-foot vessel and the breaking of the customary bottle of champagne on the bow.

But 9-year-old Caroline and Lyndon B. Johnson shared the honors.

Johnson's remarks were prepared to precede the actual christening.

Because John F. Kennedy understood that strength is essential to sustain freedom and recognized that we cannot afford to mark time or stand in place, the President said, he asked Congress in 1963 for the funds for this $188,55 million carrier.

"In the year 2000—and beyond," Johnson said, "this majectic ship we christen today may still be sailing on the oceans of the world. We pray that her years will be years of peace. But if she must fight, both the flag she flies and the name she bears will carry a profound message to friend and foe alike."

No president, Johnson said, understood his nation's historic role and purpose better than John F. Kennedy, and no man knew the burdens of that role more deeply.

"And no man," he said, ever gave more.

The present President honored the former president in another way today by announcing en route to the Virginia ceremony that he had signed Friday night a bill making the house where Kennedy was born 50 years ago next Monday the John Fitzgerald Kennedy national historic site.

"For years to come," Johnson said in a statement, "for great numbers of visitors it will make more rich, more vivid and more meaningful the memory of a great American."

President Johnson, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Richard Cardinal Cushing, former astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., 33 Kennedy family members, numerous New Frontier presidential aides, a raft of admirals, and several Cabinet officials were among 35,000 expected for the noon ceremonies at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.

The Kennedys had Navy plane shuttle service from New York, Washington and Boston to come here. From the late president's 76-year-old mother, Rose Kennedy, to grandchildren — 19 strong — the Kennedys turned out to salute the $188,500,000 carrier that will honor the memory of the nation's 35th president. Only one other president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had a similar honor.

Kennedy would have observed his 50th birthday this Monday. A lover of ships and the sea, he earned a hero's medal as a Navy lieutenant for his World War II exploits in rescuing his crew after their PT-boat was rammed by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific.

Blackout Cripples City

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A power failure crippled downtown Cincinnati today, disrupting normal city activity and forcing three major department stores to close.

All power in a square-mile downtown area was shut down at 6:30 a.m. so repairs could be made to a cable failure that had touched off the power crisis at 11:35 p.m. Friday.

Hotel and office building elevators were at a standstill Essential electric facilities in restaurants and other business places were out.

Police reported numerous instances of looting and vandalism.

The first indication of trouble came with the short-circuiting of the 13,200 volt cable strung on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway bridge over the Ohio River, which also feeds power to Newport, Ky., at the southern end of the span.

A utility spokesman said the short-circuit caused a feed-back explosion to a generator in the company's West End plant, thus spreading the darkness.

The city's two newspapers virtually idle, the electric shortage causing metal pots, essential to type setting, to cool.

Off-duty police were called into service and poured into the downtown areas of Cincinnati and the two neighboring Kentucky cities where several store windows were smashed.

Police had reports of "unruly crowds" in several places, but all were reported under control.

All lights went out in part of downtown Cincinnati about 11:35 p.m., but remained out only about a short time. Some areas of Newport and Covington were in darkness for about two hours.

When the lights came back on in Cincinnati, they were dim and flickered continuously for about two hours. A spokesman said some areas still had low voltage hours later.

Some 1,550 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have been on strike against the company since May 10.

Caruthersville Marine Killed In Auto Crash

HOLLY RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — Two marines stationed at nearby Camp LeJeune Marine base were killed early today when their car collided head-on with a Louisiana family's automobile.

Killed were Sgt. Leroy Wilson, 21, of Caruthersville, Mo., and Sgt. Paul A. Crabtree, 24, of Camp LeJeune.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Wilson of Velle Chasse, La., and their 9-year-old daughter, Valarie, were taken to James Walker Memorial Hospital at Wilmington in satisfactory condition.

Investigating officers said the car in which the Marines were riding swerved into the left lane of U.S. 17, smashing head-on into the other car.

Tax Values Rise at New Madrid

NEW MADRID - Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk, reports the assessement books for taxes for 1967 filed by the assessor shows an increase in valuation for tax purposes of $2,005,373, a 4½ increase over 1966.

This will place the total valuation at $46,739,926 exclusive of railroad and utility values, which were set by the state tax commission, at $10,488,338 for 1966.

The larger portion of the increase was on farm lands, which represented an increase of $1,648,829, with per acre values averaging $74.40. This item accounted for $30,993,372 of the total value. Town lots with the improvements increased by $159,675, and now stand at $7,656,725.

The 1967 personal property values were $6,815,575, indicating an increase of $174,449 over 1966 values. Motor vehicles, have been reduced on the average. However, 677 more vehicles were assessed and the total value is unchanged. Farm machinery, household goods, locally assessed railroad and utilities and other property were increased slightly, accounting for the 2-1/2 percent increase.

Merchant and manufacturers values were up slightly to $1,008,254, a $22,420 increase. The number of merchants and manufacturers decreased from 504 to 492.

Among the items listed on the personal assessment book were 26 horses, 26 mules, 783 head of cattle, 484 hogs, 1,000 head of poultry and 9,977 motor vehicles.

Wilkins indicated he was expecting a slight increase in values set by the state tax commission on railroads and utilities because of expansion. These values will not be available until July 10.

Thant Urges Caution

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant called today for a breathing spell in the Middle East crisis to permit a diplomatic effort to solve underlying causes of Arab-Israeli conflict. He urged restraint on both sides.

Thant expressed fear that a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran will "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

Thant's views, given in a report to the U.N. Security Council in New York, followed a speech Friday night by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt in which he said his Egyptian regime is aware that the blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel.

Thant was reporting on his talk in Cairo Wednesday with Nasser and other Egyptian leaders.

Israel was reported avoiding an immediate challenge to Nasser's announced blockade of its direct route to Iranian oil and other cargoes from the East. But it has said it will fight to keep the gulf open.

President Johnson met with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban on the crisis Friday night, but neither would comment on their discussions. Israel wants U.S. backing to keep the gulf open.

The Soviet Union has called on the United States and other Western nations to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

A test of Egyptian control measures over the Strait of Tiran, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, was possible today—but not by an Israeli ship.

A Danish freighter, identified as the Estelle Maersk, was due at the Jordanian port of Aqaba, two miles from Israel's gulf port of Elath. It was the first ship since the blockade was announced to come to Aqaba without first going through the Suez Canal.

The canal bars shipping to Israel. Four other ships which have come to Aqaba in the last three days already had been checked by Egypt when they entered Suez.

The skipper of one of those four, the West German freighter Stolzenfels said Friday night he saw no physical sign of a blockade in the Strait of Tiran.

Cairo's semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram had reported that Egyptian authorities in the strait had stopped and searched the Stolzenfels. It also said Egypt had mined the strait.

The American freighter Green Island also was expected at

Tax Values Rise at New Madrid

NEW MADRID - Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk, reports the assessement books for taxes for 1967 filed by the assessor shows an increase in valuation for tax purposes of $2,005,373, a 4½ increase over 1966.

This will place the total valuation at $46,739,926 exclusive of railroad and utility values, which were set by the state tax commission, at $10,488,338 for 1966.

The larger portion of the increase was on farm lands, which represented an increase of $1,648,829, with per acre values averaging $74.40. This item accounted for $30,993,372 of the total value. Town lots with the improvements increased by $159,675, and now stand at $7,656,725.

The 1967 personal property values were $6,815,575, indicating an increase of $174,449 over 1966 values. Motor vehicles, have been reduced on the average. However, 677 more vehicles were assessed and the total value is unchanged. Farm machinery, household goods, locally assessed railroad and utilities and other property were increased slightly, accounting for the 2-1/2 percent increase.

Merchant and manufacturers values were up slightly to $1,008,254, a $22,420 increase. The number of merchants and manufacturers decreased from 504 to 492.

Among the items listed on the personal assessment book were 26 horses, 26 mules, 783 head of cattle, 484 hogs, 1,000 head of poultry and 9,977 motor vehicles.

Wilkins indicated he was expecting a slight increase in values set by the state tax commission on railroads and utilities because of expansion. These values will not be available until July 10.

Thant Urges Caution

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant called today for a breathing spell in the Middle East crisis to permit a diplomatic effort to solve underlying causes of Arab-Israeli conflict. He urged restraint on both sides.

Thant expressed fear that a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran will "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

Thant's views, given in a report to the U.N. Security Council in New York, followed a speech Friday night by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt in which he said his Egyptian regime is aware that the blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel.

Thant was reporting on his talk in Cairo Wednesday with Nasser and other Egyptian leaders.

Israel was reported avoiding an immediate challenge to Nasser's announced blockade of its direct route to Iranian oil and other cargoes from the East. But it has said it will fight to keep the gulf open.

President Johnson met with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban on the crisis Friday night, but neither would comment on their discussions. Israel wants U.S. backing to keep the gulf open.

The Soviet Union has called on the United States and other Western nations to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

A test of Egyptian control measures over the Strait of Tiran, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, was possible today—but not by an Israeli ship.

A Danish freighter, identified as the Estelle Maersk, was due at the Jordanian port of Aqaba, two miles from Israel's gulf port of Elath. It was the first ship since the blockade was announced to come to Aqaba without first going through the Suez Canal.

The canal bars shipping to Israel. Four other ships which have come to Aqaba in the last three days already had been checked by Egypt when they entered Suez.

The skipper of one of those four, the West German freighter Stolzenfels said Friday night he saw no physical sign of a blockade in the Strait of Tiran.

Cairo's semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram had reported that Egyptian authorities in the strait had stopped and searched the Stolzenfels. It also said Egypt had mined the strait.

The American freighter Green Island also was expected at

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day was first observed on May 30, 1868, on order of Gen. John A. Logan, Commander of the G.A.R. As time passed, it has come to be a day for memorial services and decoration of graves of soldiers from other wars as well. In most States - all but five - it is a legal holiday.

If your agenda for Memorial Day doesn't call for taking time to pay honor to our war dead, perhaps a reading of the following will prompt you to change your plans. These are quotes from a tract entitled "Brief Notes on the Ways and Means of 'Beating' and Defeating the Draft." It is being widely circulated on college campuses.

"1. Be a C.O. (conscientious objector). Write your local draft board requesting . .form SSS-150.

THE LAST SCHOOL BELL

For millions of school children, the time of respite from books, homework and tests is almost at hand. Thoughts of a summer job, the playground, a camping trip, or a swim in the neighborhood pool are intruding more and more on academic pursuits. Both the young and the old need a time to refresh their spirits, soak up what they have learned and take a look at the course of their life and work.

For many high school and college students, the last school bell of this year will mean graduation and the greater responsibility of putting to use what they have learned in productive work in their communities, their nation and their families. The habit of learning is the most valuable lesson they can carry away from their days of formal education. The ability to learn and adapt is part of living in this fast changing world. It is still true that knowledge without action is futile, but it is more valid than ever before to observe that action without knowledge is disaster.

The last school bell of the year brings change. It brings the fun of summer. May it bring also a time for young people to gain new resolve to pursue the knowledge that awaits them in the schoolrooms to come and in all the years of their lives that lie ahead.

Alcohol has been found to be a contributing factor in more than half of the fatal traffic accidents, according to independent surveys.

The Alcohol connection was established through post-mortem studies of persons killed in accidents. The studies have been conducted in a number of states, and the results agree remarkably well.

A Travelers Insurance Companies spokesman said in an annual report on highway statistics, that each individual will have to make up his own mind about his personal drinking habits and driving a car. "Obviously," the spokesman added, "the driver enormously increases his chances of being in an accident - involving not only himself but others - when he drives after drinking. And the research on this subject shows clearly that he increases his risk with each additional drink."

Last year more than 52,500 persons were killed in highway accidents, an 8 percent increase over 1965. Additionally, 4,400,000 persons were injured. Beyond the human suffering, the economic loss as a result of the traffic accident problem amounted to $9.8 billion.

The Travelers report also showed that in 1966 more than 286,800 pedestrians became casualties - 40 percent of the total deaths occurred on weekends - four out of five personal injury accidents occurred in clear weather on dry roads - and almost 32 percent of the drivers involved in fatal accidents were under 25 years of age.

"Every man, woman and child has a stake in the traffic safety problem. Each must do all in his or her power to eliminate the terrible carnage on our highways," the spokesman added.

BEAUTIFUL -- A LITTLE LATER

There are variety of ways a lady can make herself less attractive. They include stretch pants or short, short shorts that are overstuffed . . . a cigarette dangling from the lips . . . garish, gruesome make - up . . . high - pitched shrieks and cackles from too many Martinis . . . far - out hairdos or weirdo clothes.

Just why the ladies are willing to appear in public looking like this is beyond the comprehension of mere man.

But there may be a clue in the story of the bride who showed up for the wedding with her hair in curlers.

"What on earth?" gasped her bridesmaid.

"Well, for heaven's sake," replied the bride, "don't you think I want to look my best for the wedding reception?"

And that, gentlemen, is part of what makes the girls so delightfully mystifying.

THREATENING THE VOICE OF THE PRESS

In many states at various times, legislation has been introduced, and in every case rejected, which would have required editorial expression in newspapers and other publications to be signed. Such a proposal is being considered in Kentucky, where the House of Representatives has passed a bill requiring editorial identification. The Senate probably will not pass the measure. No better way could be thought of to destroy the stature of a paper's voice -- its editorial page.

Commenting on this, Editor & Publisher observes: "Such a requirement would destroy the editorial page as the voice of the newspaper and turn it into a collection of individual opinions. We don't think there is any more justification for this legislation than there is for a law requiring a politician to reveal who writes his speech. A newspaper editor or publisher stands behind the comments expressed on the editorial page regardless of who put them into words just as a politician will stand behind the thoughts he utters regardless of who puts them on paper for him to read."

THE DAY'S RESULT

AMERICAN BISON: MOST USEFUL BEAST

The buffalo was not only meat for the Indian; he was just about everything, the Catholic Digest explains.

Dried meat was pounded fine, then mixed with berries, put into watertight skins, and covered with melted tallow to make pemmican, a long-lasting food. Hair was woven into pillows and saddle pads. Marrow was dug out of the bones and preserved in bladder skins to be used later as food. The skull was used in ceremonial dances.

Hides were turned over to the squaws, who fashioned them into tepees, shields, bedrolls, ropes, winter robes, snowshows, and boats. Jawbones were the children's delight; they used them for sliding. Sinews provided bow-strings and sewing materials. The stomach was made into pails and bags.

Bones became clubs or tools. Hooves were made into glue. Horns were fashioned into headdresses, weapons, drinking vessels, spoons, and toys. Skin was used for thongs, and buffalo chips for fuel.

No wonder the Indians regarded the buffalo as a gift from the Great Spirit. Before the coming of the white man, his buffalo numbered more than 50 million. Today, some 7,000 are left.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

BR'ER LYNDON'S TARBABY

EVERY TIME Br'er Rabbit hit that tarbaby a lick he just got hisself more gummed up, and Br'er Lyndon's war in Vietnam has got him likewise -- hands, feet and head all buried in de tar and he cain't git loose noway.

So the President is over on the minus side of the popularity polls. Those who have lashed their political fortunes to his chariot are growing frantic as the national sense of frustration and the winds of criticism rise. Clearly, the President finds himself in a situation faced by none of his predecessors.

The I-told-you-soers among the hawks (count me in) are pointing to the bankruptcy of the theory that if we would only fight the war in a half-way manner there would be escalation and the reds would soon grow tired. Escalation has most plainly occurred, and Moscow, which was only huffing and puffing a year ago, is now boldly pouring in its latest hardware and direly predicting total war if we fight to win.

The doves, of course, are flapping their wings over the rivers of blood and cooing that we must produce peace with honor by negotiation, as if that weren't what L.B.J. has been performing nip-ups to do all along.

THE WORLD Council of Churches, under Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, is behaving predictably. Old Bertrand Russell and Jean Paul Sartre have had their grotesque "trial" of America for atrocities. Martin Luther King has shucked his robes of moderation and joined Stokely Carmichael and Floyd McKissick in a strange campaign that seems to say that Uncle Sam must withdraw from the world arena until all their demands are satisfied.

And, of course, international communism and its fellow travelers are having a field day organizing anti-American riots abroad and Flag and draft card burnings at home. The Communists well understand the size of the stakes.

FOR COMMUNISM is in deep trouble. Its economic contradictions are catching up with it. The Kremlin's control over the world movement is slipping. The satellites are growing fractious and reaching out toward the West. Revisionism is well advanced in Lenin's homeland in an atmosphere of mixed hope and bewilderment. And China is getting its latest news off the walls.

Communism needs a major victory. Vietnam is the place. For in Vietnam the Reds thought they had found a formula for the easy conquest of most chaotic new nations. It was ridiculously simple -- the assassination of 10,000 village chiefs to destroy the local power structure of people who had little sense of national identity. It was minority rule by progressive terror. And it was working.

Did the people want that rule? How do the left - wingers explain that in last autumn's constitutional elections 80% of the South Vietnamese went to the polls against the warnings and the threats of the Viet Cong?

BUT OUR big mistake was to confuse Vietnam with Korea. We fought a half - way war in Korea, too. President Truman dismissed Gen. Douglas MacArthur because he wanted to bomb above the Yalu for a clear - cut military victory. Still, at Panmunjom we gained a defensible truce line on the 38th parallel because the terrain was open and the line was flanked by seas which we controlled.

South Vietnam, on the other hand, is bordered along its whole length by a jungle sanctuary. We repeatedly beat battalions that fled a few kilometers into "neutral" Cambodia and sat down to regroup and rearm. Without the doctrine of hot pursuit not even the most superior forces can win a lasting victory.

So we thrust and retreated. We tried truces. We prostrated ourselves to get somebody -- anybody -- to the conference table. And as the doves and the dupes and the hard - core Reds made noises that gave the impression America's determination was about to collapse, it was not surprising that Moscow, Peking and Hanoi would conclude that with a little more pressure we will pull out. So the ante keeps going up and brave men die.

Of course, the situation is dangerous. But in fairness to Br'er Lyndon let's imagine what would have happened if he hadn't tackled the tarbaby. Remember, the cynical campaign of murder and terror was working. It would have worked against Laos and Cambodia, too. It is already being tried in northeast Thailand. Who thinks Malaya could have survived? And would Indonesia have dared kick out the Reds if the rest of Southeast Asia had already fallen?

And what about Africa -- most of it a cinch for conquest by selective assassination?

LYNDON JOHNSON'S decision was a correct one. Its application was faulty. Maybe he listened too little to his generals and too much to the Whiz Kid and the Miss Nancys of the State Department. But recently he has shown a will to take risks for victory. They would have been little risks a year ago. Now they are big ones.

We could blunder into an automatic war tomorrow. But if we scuttle now, atomic war will be a cinch the day after.

Inside Labor

Operating Engineers Union Sets World Record -- Strikes For $92 - a -Week per Man Pay Hike

Washington, D.C.: -- There's something about a bulldozer--or, rather, the chap who operates one --which sets him apart from the common man. And it is giving the government another set of jitters at a moment of a surplus supply of the shakes.

That something is the bulldozers' union, the Operating Engineers, which struck about a billion dollars worth of heavy construction in Ohio as far back as May 3 -- in a bid for pay hikes which would bring them a $500 week, inclusive of normal overtime pay.

Since the Ohio Local (18) is statewide and has some 12,000 members, the pencil brigade over at the Labor Dept. reckons a union victory would cost over $50 million in two years.

And since most of them work on highways, water operation, city streets, airports, pipelines, flood control projects, dams, etc., the budget - burdened White House figures the public eventually will have to pay.

Not just the Ohio public -- but all the people in the U.S.A. The Ohio construction work, struck on May 3, is second only to that in California. And it is watched closely by all the locals of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO). Whatever Local 18 racks up, the others are sure to follow.

Not the least of those concerned is the contracting and construction brass in the Pentagon. Among the work shut down in Ohio are U.S. Corps of Engineers operations typical of what is needed in scores of other states. Thus any blue - ribbon package gained by the Ohio Local soon will become standard elsewhere.

There's been a deadlock between the local and the contractors association which handles some 92 per cent of all heavy construction work in the state. These builders are part of the Associated General Contractors whose president generally is a soft - spoken chap. He is B.B. Armstrong, of Roswell, New Mexico. He is an old friend. I know him to be a chap who is no eternal enemy of unionism or reason either. But his calm was shaken when news came of the demands of those who handle bulldozers, big cranes, and the huge earth - moving equipment.

The union's "request" was for a pay raise of $92 a week per man for straight time -- and $121.70 a week with routine overtime. This did not include penalty time, or hazard time or special holiday overtime which sometimes develops when a contractor drives to meet his deadline after acts - of - God delays or, as in this case, the acts of some mighty men.

These appear to be the highest demands in recent traceable industrial history. Armstrong says it's the "worst and most inflationary wage demand I've heard of throughout the entire country."

Union spokesmen here say it is reasonable since their men don't work the year round -- and the cost of living is high anyway.

Over at the White House executive office, a colleague of Gardner Ackley, chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, simply moaned something which sounded like: What ever happened to those 3.2 and 5 per cent guide lines we're supposed to hold?

Without a mini - computer one really can't tell. After conversations with the human adding machines in various agencies, it appears that the Ohio Local 18 is asking for an average of from 46 to 55 per cent increase over the current base pay.

The local is led by the ailing Frank Converse who has been hospitalized. He's held sway since smoke signal days -- or about 50 years. So he's a man with a fixed position as are those who are now in more active leadership.

So the strike rolled over more than $738 million in heavy highway construction projects across the state, and $350 million in other public works. In all, the estimate is that 132,000 men are idle officially (many are working elsewhere according to reports).

And so the public has reason to ponder issues more critical even than a demand for a $92 a week increase per man.

'It is the issue of the balance of power, the issue or economic strength concentrated in a regional organization, no matter what it be, and the issue of the public's eventual role in these massive jousting tournaments -- which affect the nation, the average worker, the professional, too, who looks back at the years of study at advanced institutes and wonders how long it would take to master a bulldozer.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- There is reason to believe that President Gamal Abdel Nasser has decided upon a stupendous gamble calculated to make him kingpin of the entire Arab world. Otherwise he will go down in ignominious defeat.

Real fact is that never in his two decades of rule over Egypt had Nasser been lower in prestige -- up until this week. Now he has electrified the Arab world and is riding so high that it's impossible for his bitter enemies, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia and King Hussein of Jordon, to refuse him support.

If he comes out on top of this winner - take - all gamble, he will be the first man in a thousand years able to dictate to the Arab world. If he loses, he will not have lost much, because at the rate things were going in Egypt, he would have been kicked out of power.

Here is what he faced at home:

1. A long and expensive war with 70,000 Egyptian troops pinned down in Yemen, causing such bitterness among young officers that Nasser feared rebellion if they returned home. In a war against Israel, however, they will fight enthusiastically.

2. The revolt of the Moslem league. This included the sons of some of Egypt's best families, and came within hours of succeeding.

2. The revolt of the Moslem league. This included the sons of some of Egypt's best families, and came within hours of succeeding.

3. Food. The United States cancelled its wheat agreement with Egypt, and it will not be long before people will be hungry.

4. Business. The Egyptian economy is limping. There have been business failures.

5. Nasser's balance of payments is so bad that he has not been able to keep up his installments to the World Bank.

All these have now been relegated into the background-- by accident or design -- as a result of the showdown over Israel.

NASSER ABANDONS CAUTION

Significantly, Nasser has been a restraining force among other Arab leaders in the past when it came to military designs on Israel. He has used caution, has argued that the Arabs has lacked a united general staff, were not prepared for war. This time Nasser has been the opposite. He could have satisfied the Arab world merely by expelling Aquaba. Instead Nasser took on the western world by closing the Tiran Straits.

In my opinion he did this, first, because of his deteriorating position at home; second, because he knew he would have tacit Soviet support.

The diplomats are still guessing as to what he and Foreign Minister Gromyko talked about when they conferred in Cairo. But, regardless of what they discussed, Nasser is a shrewd enough strategist to know that the Soviet, being embarrassed by the United States in South Vietnam, would like nothing better than to embarrass the United States in the Near East.

U. S. LOSSES

If Nasser wins a military showdown with Israel the losses to the United States will be devastating. Every other Arab leader, no matter how friendly to the United States, would be under his thumb. Libya, which distrusts and dislikes Nasser, would be called upon to cancel the giant American Wheelus Air Force Base in Tripoli.

There would be pressure to cancel the American Cummunications Center in Eritrea, a station vital to tracking our satellites.

American oil investments in the Near East could come under the control of an Arab oil combine which could set both prices and royalties.

Should Nasser emerge as the hero who defeats Israel there would be immediate revolutions against the moderate monarchies of the Near East -- Morocco, Jordan and Libya -- which have given their countries progressive, stable governments.

Several recent factors point to the probability that Nasser has been preparing for a showdown with Israel for some time.

The official Egyptian newspaper has been running a series of articles on American foreign policy, highly critical of the United States. U. S. policy is described as a huge spider web, seeking to ensnare small countries to be devoured. The last article showed Egypt breaking loose from the last strand of the spider web -- namely, the food agreement with the United States. It so happened that this agreement literally prevented Egyptian starvation during the last five years, and it was ended not by Nasser but by the Johnson administration.

Another significant event was the fact that Nasser recently recalled his long - time Ambassador to Washington, Dr. Mostafa Kamel. Ambassador Kamel had been in the United States nine years, was near the top in the diplomatic corps, and carried influence for better American-Egyptian relations. Suddenly this spring he was recalled.

Should the United States get involved in any war between Israel and its Arab neighbors, it would get no help whatsoever from the French, who long have been smarting over the manner in which President Eisenhower intervened in 1956 to prevent the French - British - Israeli crackdown on Nasser for seizing the Suez Canal. At that time Israeli troops were along the canal, while French and British troops were at its Mediterranean end when Eisenhower telephoned Premier Guy Mollet in Paris and Prime Minister Anthony Eden in London demanding that they get out of Egypt.

They did. But that withdrawal caused the downfall of the Eden government, and the tremendous skid of British prestige east of Suez even since.

The French, who have recovered from the Suez debacle more dramatically than the British, are almost publicly gleeful over the predicament in which the United States finds itself today -- bogged down in Vietnam on one side of Asia and forced to defend commitments it has made on the other side of Asia.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day was first observed on May 30, 1868, on order of Gen. John A. Logan, Commander of the G.A.R. As time passed, it has come to be a day for memorial services and decoration of graves of soldiers from other wars as well. In most States - all but five - it is a legal holiday.

If your agenda for Memorial Day doesn't call for taking time to pay honor to our war dead, perhaps a reading of the following will prompt you to change your plans. These are quotes from a tract entitled "Brief Notes on the Ways and Means of 'Beating' and Defeating the Draft." It is being widely circulated on college campuses.

"1. Be a C.O. (conscientious objector). Write your local draft board requesting . .form SSS-150.

"2. Have a 'demonstration' during your pre-induction physical . . .Arrive . . .wearing signs END THE DRAFT NOW, or GET OUT OF VIETNAM, or the like . . .

"3. Refuse to sign the loyalty oath . . .if you have been fairly active in any of the subversive campus movements, they won't want you . . .

"4. Be 'gay'. Play the homosexual bit . . . act embarrassed in front of the other guys when you undress.

"5. Note from doctor . . .Get a signed note attesting to an allergy, a trick knee or elbow or shoulder or back trouble or asthma. . . .

"6. Be an epileptic. Borrow the standard epileptic medal from a friend and wear it. Mark the form properly . . .

"7. Jail record. Most of us aren't lucky enough to have a felony record . . .Misdemeanors, if you have enough of them are a good deal . . . .

"8. Play psycho . . .Talk about the Viet Cong being out to get you. Tell them you're a secret agent for God Johnson. . . .

"9. Arrive drunk.

"10. Arrive high . . .If you want to go about the addiction scene in a really big way, use a common pin on your arm for weeks in advance. . . .

"11. Be an undesirable. Go for a couple of weeks without a shower. Really look dirty. Stink. . .

"12. Be a foul-up. Don't do anything right. Forget instructions . . .

"13. Be a troublemaker . . .pick a fight with a fellow inductee . . .

"14. Tell them you wet the bed when you're away from home. . . prove it . . ."

THE LAST SCHOOL BELL

For millions of school children, the time of respite from books, homework and tests is almost at hand. Thoughts of a summer job, the playground, a camping trip, or a swim in the neighborhood pool are intruding more and more on academic pursuits. Both the young and the old need a time to refresh their spirits, soak up what they have learned and take a look at the course of their life and work.

For many high school and college students, the last school bell of this year will mean graduation and the greater responsibility of putting to use what they have learned in productive work in their communities, their nation and their families. The habit of learning is the most valuable lesson they can carry away from their days of formal education. The ability to learn and adapt is part of living in this fast changing world. It is still true that knowledge without action is futile, but it is more valid than ever before to observe that action without knowledge is disaster.

The last school bell of the year brings change. It brings the fun of summer. May it bring also a time for young people to gain new resolve to pursue the knowledge that awaits them in the schoolrooms to come and in all the years of their lives that lie ahead.

Alcohol has been found to be a contributing factor in more than half of the fatal traffic accidents, according to independent surveys.

The Alcohol connection was established through post-mortem studies of persons killed in accidents. The studies have been conducted in a number of states, and the results agree remarkably well.

A Travelers Insurance Companies spokesman said in an annual report on highway statistics, that each individual will have to make up his own mind about his personal drinking habits and driving a car. "Obviously," the spokesman added, "the driver enormously increases his chances of being in an accident - involving not only himself but others - when he drives after drinking. And the research on this subject shows clearly that he increases his risk with each additional drink."

Last year more than 52,500 persons were killed in highway accidents, an 8 percent increase over 1965. Additionally, 4,400,000 persons were injured. Beyond the human suffering, the economic loss as a result of the traffic accident problem amounted to $9.8 billion.

The Travelers report also showed that in 1966 more than 286,800 pedestrians became casualties - 40 percent of the total deaths occurred on weekends - four out of five personal injury accidents occurred in clear weather on dry roads - and almost 32 percent of the drivers involved in fatal accidents were under 25 years of age.

"Every man, woman and child has a stake in the traffic safety problem. Each must do all in his or her power to eliminate the terrible carnage on our highways," the spokesman added.

BEAUTIFUL -- A LITTLE LATER

There are variety of ways a lady can make herself less attractive. They include stretch pants or short, short shorts that are overstuffed . . . a cigarette dangling from the lips . . . garish, gruesome make - up . . . high - pitched shrieks and cackles from too many Martinis . . . far - out hairdos or weirdo clothes.

Just why the ladies are willing to appear in public looking like this is beyond the comprehension of mere man.

But there may be a clue in the story of the bride who showed up for the wedding with her hair in curlers.

"What on earth?" gasped her bridesmaid.

"Well, for heaven's sake," replied the bride, "don't you think I want to look my best for the wedding reception?"

And that, gentlemen, is part of what makes the girls so delightfully mystifying.

THREATENING THE VOICE OF THE PRESS

In many states at various times, legislation has been introduced, and in every case rejected, which would have required editorial expression in newspapers and other publications to be signed. Such a proposal is being considered in Kentucky, where the House of Representatives has passed a bill requiring editorial identification. The Senate probably will not pass the measure. No better way could be thought of to destroy the stature of a paper's voice -- its editorial page.

Commenting on this, Editor & Publisher observes: "Such a requirement would destroy the editorial page as the voice of the newspaper and turn it into a collection of individual opinions. We don't think there is any more justification for this legislation than there is for a law requiring a politician to reveal who writes his speech. A newspaper editor or publisher stands behind the comments expressed on the editorial page regardless of who put them into words just as a politician will stand behind the thoughts he utters regardless of who puts them on paper for him to read."

AMERICAN BISON: MOST USEFUL BEAST

The buffalo was not only meat for the Indian; he was just about everything, the Catholic Digest explains.

Dried meat was pounded fine, then mixed with berries, put into watertight skins, and covered with melted tallow to make pemmican, a long-lasting food. Hair was woven into pillows and saddle pads. Marrow was dug out of the bones and preserved in bladder skins to be used later as food. The skull was used in ceremonial dances.

Hides were turned over to the squaws, who fashioned them into tepees, shields, bedrolls, ropes, winter robes, snowshows, and boats. Jawbones were the children's delight; they used them for sliding. Sinews provided bow-strings and sewing materials. The stomach was made into pails and bags.

Bones became clubs or tools. Hooves were made into glue. Horns were fashioned into headdresses, weapons, drinking vessels, spoons, and toys. Skin was used for thongs, and buffalo chips for fuel.

No wonder the Indians regarded the buffalo as a gift from the Great Spirit. Before the coming of the white man, his buffalo numbered more than 50 million. Today, some 7,000 are left.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

BR'ER LYNDON'S TARBABY

EVERY TIME Br'er Rabbit hit that tarbaby a lick he just got hisself more gummed up, and Br'er Lyndon's war in Vietnam has got him likewise -- hands, feet and head all buried in de tar and he cain't git loose noway.

So the President is over on the minus side of the popularity polls. Those who have lashed their political fortunes to his chariot are growing frantic as the national sense of frustration and the winds of criticism rise. Clearly, the President finds himself in a situation faced by none of his predecessors.

The I-told-you-soers among the hawks (count me in) are pointing to the bankruptcy of the theory that if we would only fight the war in a half-way manner there would be escalation and the reds would soon grow tired. Escalation has most plainly occurred, and Moscow, which was only huffing and puffing a year ago, is now boldly pouring in its latest hardware and direly predicting total war if we fight to win.

The doves, of course, are flapping their wings over the rivers of blood and cooing that we must produce peace with honor by negotiation, as if that weren't what L.B.J. has been performing nip-ups to do all along.

THE WORLD Council of Churches, under Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, is behaving predictably. Old Bertrand Russell and Jean Paul Sartre have had their grotesque "trial" of America for atrocities. Martin Luther King has shucked his robes of moderation and joined Stokely Carmichael and Floyd McKissick in a strange campaign that seems to say that Uncle Sam must withdraw from the world arena until all their demands are satisfied.

And, of course, international communism and its fellow travelers are having a field day organizing anti-American riots abroad and Flag and draft card burnings at home. The Communists well understand the size of the stakes.

FOR COMMUNISM is in deep trouble. Its economic contradictions are catching up with it. The Kremlin's control over the world movement is slipping. The satellites are growing fractious and reaching out toward the West. Revisionism is well advanced in Lenin's homeland in an atmosphere of mixed hope and bewilderment. And China is getting its latest news off the walls.

Communism needs a major victory. Vietnam is the place. For in Vietnam the Reds thought they had found a formula for the easy conquest of most chaotic new nations. It was ridiculously simple -- the assassination of 10,000 village chiefs to destroy the local power structure of people who had little sense of national identity. It was minority rule by progressive terror. And it was working.

Did the people want that rule? How do the left - wingers explain that in last autumn's constitutional elections 80% of the South Vietnamese went to the polls against the warnings and the threats of the Viet Cong?

BUT OUR big mistake was to confuse Vietnam with Korea. We fought a half - way war in Korea, too. President Truman dismissed Gen. Douglas MacArthur because he wanted to bomb above the Yalu for a clear - cut military victory. Still, at Panmunjom we gained a defensible truce line on the 38th parallel because the terrain was open and the line was flanked by seas which we controlled.

South Vietnam, on the other hand, is bordered along its whole length by a jungle sanctuary. We repeatedly beat battalions that fled a few kilometers into "neutral" Cambodia and sat down to regroup and rearm. Without the doctrine of hot pursuit not even the most superior forces can win a lasting victory.

So we thrust and retreated. We tried truces. We prostrated ourselves to get somebody -- anybody -- to the conference table. And as the doves and the dupes and the hard - core Reds made noises that gave the impression America's determination was about to collapse, it was not surprising that Moscow, Peking and Hanoi would conclude that with a little more pressure we will pull out. So the ante keeps going up and brave men die.

Of course, the situation is dangerous. But in fairness to Br'er Lyndon let's imagine what would have happened if he hadn't tackled the tarbaby. Remember, the cynical campaign of murder and terror was working. It would have worked against Laos and Cambodia, too. It is already being tried in northeast Thailand. Who thinks Malaya could have survived? And would Indonesia have dared kick out the Reds if the rest of Southeast Asia had already fallen?

And what about Africa -- most of it a cinch for conquest by selective assassination?

LYNDON JOHNSON'S decision was a correct one. Its application was faulty. Maybe he listened too little to his generals and too much to the Whiz Kid and the Miss Nancys of the State Department. But recently he has shown a will to take risks for victory. They would have been little risks a year ago. Now they are big ones.

We could blunder into an automatic war tomorrow. But if we scuttle now, atomic war will be a cinch the day after.

Operating Engineers Union Sets World Record -- Strikes For $92 - a -Week per Man Pay Hike

Washington, D.C.: -- There's something about a bulldozer--or, rather, the chap who operates one --which sets him apart from the common man. And it is giving the government another set of jitters at a moment of a surplus supply of the shakes.

That something is the bulldozers' union, the Operating Engineers, which struck about a billion dollars worth of heavy construction in Ohio as far back as May 3 -- in a bid for pay hikes which would bring them a $500 week, inclusive of normal overtime pay.

Since the Ohio Local (18) is statewide and has some 12,000 members, the pencil brigade over at the Labor Dept. reckons a union victory would cost over $50 million in two years.

And since most of them work on highways, water operation, city streets, airports, pipelines, flood control projects, dams, etc., the budget - burdened White House figures the public eventually will have to pay.

Not just the Ohio public -- but all the people in the U.S.A. The Ohio construction work, struck on May 3, is second only to that in California. And it is watched closely by all the locals of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO). Whatever Local 18 racks up, the others are sure to follow.

Not the least of those concerned is the contracting and construction brass in the Pentagon. Among the work shut down in Ohio are U.S. Corps of Engineers operations typical of what is needed in scores of other states. Thus any blue - ribbon package gained by the Ohio Local soon will become standard elsewhere.

There's been a deadlock between the local and the contractors association which handles some 92 per cent of all heavy construction work in the state. These builders are part of the Associated General Contractors whose president generally is a soft - spoken chap. He is B.B. Armstrong, of Roswell, New Mexico. He is an old friend. I know him to be a chap who is no eternal enemy of unionism or reason either. But his calm was shaken when news came of the demands of those who handle bulldozers, big cranes, and the huge earth - moving equipment.

The union's "request" was for a pay raise of $92 a week per man for straight time -- and $121.70 a week with routine overtime. This did not include penalty time, or hazard time or special holiday overtime which sometimes develops when a contractor drives to meet his deadline after acts - of - God delays or, as in this case, the acts of some mighty men.

These appear to be the highest demands in recent traceable industrial history. Armstrong says it's the "worst and most inflationary wage demand I've heard of throughout the entire country."

Union spokesmen here say it is reasonable since their men don't work the year round -- and the cost of living is high anyway.

Over at the White House executive office, a colleague of Gardner Ackley, chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, simply moaned something which sounded like: What ever happened to those 3.2 and 5 per cent guide lines we're supposed to hold?

Without a mini - computer one really can't tell. After conversations with the human adding machines in various agencies, it appears that the Ohio Local 18 is asking for an average of from 46 to 55 per cent increase over the current base pay.

The local is led by the ailing Frank Converse who has been hospitalized. He's held sway since smoke signal days -- or about 50 years. So he's a man with a fixed position as are those who are now in more active leadership.

So the strike rolled over more than $738 million in heavy highway construction projects across the state, and $350 million in other public works. In all, the estimate is that 132,000 men are idle officially (many are working elsewhere according to reports).

And so the public has reason to ponder issues more critical even than a demand for a $92 a week increase per man.

It is the issue of the balance of power, the issue or economic strength concentrated in a regional organization, no matter what it be, and the issue of the public's eventual role in these massive jousting tournaments -- which affect the nation, the average worker, the professional, too, who looks back at the years of study at advanced institutes and wonders how long it would take to master a bulldozer.

The Need For Roots

We live in an age when one out of five families move their residence each year. Neighbors, and-marks, foundations seem to be constantly changing. But the real roots in our contemporary world are not simply the roots of hometown or familiar places. The real roots are the roots of the people of God, the church. Football Merger Plans Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — The office of president of the National Football League has become an unpaid, temporary position under the new pro football setup of ever-increasing centralized authority in Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns, will double in brass as a personable NFL president with a fine public relations sense while running his own club's affairs, at least until the next league meetings in February.

Rozelle, busily reorganizing his office and expanding the staff of the commissioner to implement the full merging of the NFL, and American Football League by the 1970 target date, thus gave up one of the two hats

As both commissioner of the two leagues and commissioner of the NFL, Rozelle had found himself in a difficult position. Now Modell will make all statements involving the NFL from his Cleveland office and will work with Rozelle on fulfilling the merger.

Milt Woodard, elected president of the AFL after the June merger, will continue in that post. He is a salaried official.

"Since we announced our plans to merge into a single expanded league by 1970 last June 8," said Rozelle, "we have met in the same hotel, held a common draft and arranged preseason games for this season. At this meeting we have seen Cincinnati added as the 10th

Phils Clip Birds
Marichal Notches Eighth

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Juan Marichal entertains the Los Angeles Dodgers, it's a Candlestick Park breeze.

But whenever — and wherever — Roberto Clemente and the Cincinnati Reds run into each other, it's a fight for survival.

Marichal became the major leagues' first eight-game winner Friday night by scattering six hits as the San Francisco Giants trimmed the visiting Dodgers 4-1.

Clemente, meanwhile, continued his one-man crusade against Cincinnati by stroking a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 nod over the National League leaders.

In other NL action, Philadelphia topped St. Louis 7-4 on Don Lock's three-run homer, New York nipped Atlanta 1-0 on Don Cardwell's three-hitter and Houston flattened Chicago 17-4 in a club-record scoring spree.

In taming the Dodgers for the 14th time in 14 Candlestick Park decisions, Marichal ran his winning string to eight after three setbacks at the start of the season. The Dominican dandy has beaten the Dodgers twice this year.

Clemente, the league's leading hitter, settled an 11-day-old score with Cincinnati by breaking up the extra-inning struggle at Pittsburgh. When the clubs opened a three-game series at Cincinnati on May 15, Clemente drove in seven runs with three homers and a double, only to come out on the short end of an 8-7, 10-inning decision.

Home runs by Jim Hart, in the second inning, and Ollie Brown, in the fourth, made Marichal's job an easy fling. He blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when Willie Davis' run-scoring single averted a shutout.

The Reds, however, gave Clemente a dizzy run for his money. He singled in the first inning, was robbed of an extra-base hit by right fielder Tommy Harper in the third, and chopped a hard grounder in the fifth that got through shortstop Leo Cardenas for a two-run error.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, the Pirates' superstar struck out. With the game deadlocked 4-4 in the ninth, he reached base on another error by Cardenas, but was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on a passed ball.

Finally, after Cincy reliever Darrell Osteen loaded the bases on a walk and two hit batters in the 12th, Clemente delivered the hit to left field that broke a 5-5 tangle.

Lock capped a four-run Philadelphia rally in the eight inning with his three-run blast after getting a life when Cards second baseman Phil Gagliano misjudged his foul pop outside first base.

Johnny Callison crashed a pair of homers for the Phillies and Rich Allen singled across the tying run in the eighth before Lock connected.

The Mets' Cardwell made Jerry Buchek's second inning home run stand up against the Braves, who have scored in only one inning of their last three starts and have had just eight hits during that stretch.

The Astros walloped four homers, good for 10 runs, in topping their previous high of 16 runs, scored against the Mets in 1962. Rusty Staub and Joe Morgan hit three-run homers while Jim Wynn and Ron Davis belted two-run shots.

Drabowsky Gets Win In Relief Job For Orioles

BY HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't look now, but here come the Orioles.

Somewhat sluggish from a stumbling start, Baltimore has weaved its way up through the American League standings and today Hank Bauer's defending world champions are breathing the heady air of third place.

It's not the rarified atmosphere of first place which the Orioles enjoyed almost all of last year, but it's much better than the dingy cellar surroundings they occupied just two weeks ago.

The Birds won their ninth game in the last 12 Friday night, nipping Boston 4-3 on strong relief pitching of Moe Drabowsky. In other American League games, Cleveland edged New York 4-3, Minnesota blanked Kansas City 5-0, Detroit battered Washington 10-5 and California split a douleheader with Chicago, winning 7-2 before losing 2-1.

Baltimore jumped out to a 4-0 lead and Dave McNally struck out seven Boston hitters in the first four innings.

But the Red Sox knocked him out in the fifth with run-scoring singles by Reggie Smith and Mike Ryan. That brought on Drabowsky, and the veteran reliever allowed only one hit the rest of the way.

Drabowsky got credit for the victory, his third this season and ninth straight over two years with the Orioles.

Dave Johnson scored Baltimore's first run after a first inning double and drove in two more with a single in the fourth.

Charlie Smith's two-base throwing error in the eighth inning set up Cleveland's winning run against the Yankees.

Joe Azcue rapped a sharp grounder to third and when Smith threw wild on the hit, Azcue raced all the way to third. Pedro Gonazlez followed with a base hit.

Max Alvis accounted for the first three Cleveland runs with a third inning home run against loser Fritz Peterson. Steve Hargan, who went the distance for the victory, allowed all three Yankee runs in the second when New York bunched five singles.

The Twins jolted Jim Nash for three runs in the first inning and got five-hit pitching from Jim Merritt to blank the Athletics.

Immunizations at Richland CAA

GRAY RIDGE -- The Richland CAA met Monday at the grade school with 26 attending.

President James Rankins called the meeting to order with a prayer by Mrs. Elsie Warren. Secretary - Treasure, Mrs. Violet Wheeler read the minutes of the last meeting.

Rankins then gave a report of the home health center now in operation in Stoddard county.

Mrs. Ruby Hampton, nurses aide, told of the training program they have completed. They work in the homes giving care to those in need. She explained, the plans to give immunization shots to the children age six weeks to six years at each neighborhood service center with the help of the doctors in the county. These will be of low income families taken from the surveys made by the center.

Plans were discussed for a youth program this summer, and a meeting has been set for the board members and other interested persons to work together and come up with a good program to serve the youth in this area.

The possibilities of a senior citizen program being added to the NSC was discussed and the in kind needed to take care of the nonfederal share for the CAA.

The CAA is now located in the old Gray Ridge high school. There has been a community room added to the center so people in the community can use it when needed. There is also a thrift shop which is open every day to the public and a sewing room where the volunteers meet and quilt and sew. Any women who wish to join the Volunteers in the Community Service can come any day of the week.

The next CAA meeting will be in the community room June 26 at 8:30 p.m. An open house is planned.

If someone is eligible for these immunizations and the center does not have a survey on them, he may notify the coordinator, Joan Peters, and someone will make the arrangements for the immunization.

New Center for Bell City CAA

BELL CITY -- The regular meeting of the community action agency was Tuesday at the school cafeteria with 35 attending.

Cotton Replanted

HAYTI - Farmers entered fields as they became workable. Some producers are replanting cotton for the third time.

Many have abandoned their cotton and are replanting to alternate crops.

Losses to the cotton crop are difficult to accurately estimate, but most sources feel that less than one-half the state's allotted acreage will remain in cotton.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

By Thomas G. Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Grass and weeds will be a problem in a number of corn fields as a result of the recent rains, and farmers are asking for information concerning chemicals that might be used to control these weeds.

Three chemicals are recommended for post - emergence weed control treatments in corn including 2, 4-D, Atrazine, and Linuron (Larox).

2, 4-D will control only broad-leaved weeds and can be used any time there is a broadleaved weed problem except from the beginning of tasseling until after the early dough state. It should be applied at the rate of from one-fourth to one-half pound of actual acid equivalent per acre. The amine formulation of 2, 4-D should be around cotton and other crops highly susceptible to 2, 4-D damage. When ground equipment is used, drops should be used on the sprayer boom if the corn is over 10 inches tall and the weeds are considerably shorter than the corn. Adjust the nozzle height so that the edges of the spray fans cross about 2 1/2 inches above the tallest weeds. The 2, 4-D post emergence treatment often causes temporary brittleness in corn stalks; therefore, it is recommended that corn not be cultivated for at least one week after application. Caution should be exercised in apply 2, 4-D near growing cotton as this crop is often damaged by 2, 4-D.

Atrazine, when applied as a post-emergency spray, will kill existing weeds and grasses up to 1 1/2 inches tall and will give pre-emergence control of those weeds that attempt to come up after it is applied. Over all applications usually give control of annual weeds for the entire season whereas band applications require a number of cultivations to control weeds between the rows. Two pounds of actual chemical per acre will give good weed control on most soils; however, three pounds or more may be necessary on high organic matter, heavy clay soils. Label restrictions limit post-emergence applications to not later than three weeks after planting. Treatment with Atrazine is not fully effective if the soil remains dry for two to three weeks after application. If, by 10 days after application, no significant rainfall has occurred, rotary hoeing will improve the effectiveness of the chemical.

Atrazine residue in the soil may injure small grains on forage crops planted in the fall or spring following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Research results indicate that it is safe to produce corn, cotton, or sorghum on a field the year following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Sorghum can also usually be safely grown the year following treatment if the rate of atrazine application does not exceed two pounds per acre.

Linuron (Larox) can be applied as a directed spray to corn at the rate of two pounds of actual chemical per acre. A wetting agent will improve the effectiveness of this treatment. A surfactant, can be used for this purpose at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray.

President James Rankins called the meeting to order with a prayer by Mrs. Elsie Warren. Secretary - Treasure, Mrs. Violet Wheeler read the minutes of the last meeting.

Rankins then gave a report of the home health center now in operation in Stoddard county.

Mrs. Ruby Hampton, nurses aide, told of the training program they have completed. They work in the homes giving care to those in need. She explained, the plans to give immunization shots to the children age six weeks to six years at each neighborhood service center with the help of the doctors in the county. These will be of low income families taken from the surveys made by the center.

Plans were discussed for a youth program this summer, and a meeting has been set for the board members and other interested persons to work together and come up with a good program to serve the youth in this area.

The possibilities of a senior citizen program being added to the NSC was discussed and the in kind needed to take care of the nonfederal share for the CAA.

The CAA is now located in the old Gray Ridge high school. There has been a community room added to the center so people in the community can use it when needed. There is also a thrift shop which is open every day to the public and a sewing room where the volunteers meet and quilt and sew. Any women who wish to join the Volunteers in the Community Service can come any day of the week.

The next CAA meeting will be in the community room June 26 at 8:30 p.m. An open house is planned.

If someone is eligible for these immunizations and the center does not have a survey on them, he may notify the coordinator, Joan Peters, and someone will make the arrangements for the immunization.

New Center for Bell City CAA

BELL CITY -- The regular meeting of the community action agency was Tuesday at the school cafeteria with 35 attending.

President C. G. Lemmons reported that the CAA office has been moved to the Truman school building where better facilities are available. The building is rent - free, but the CAA pays for utilities.

Three rooms and the offices are being used.

Mrs. Clarence Wingfield, home health aide and Mrs. John Talley gave reports on health aides. Mrs. Talley exhibited supplies that had been issued to each home health aide.

The aides' services will be under the supervision of the doctors of those persons being treated.

Miss Minnie Pullen submitted her resignation as an aide.

Paul Barks, coodinator, gave a report on two programs being discussed for this area. A recreation program funded by the state would provide $4,000 for the area. A recreational director and an assistant would be employed. Approval of the program is expected soon.

A senior citizens program for the six counties served by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation would serve persons over age 50. Funds for this program would total $144,000.

Appointed to a committee to study the recreation program were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Strobel, Forrest Jackson, J. C. Pullen Jr., Robert Scherer and Mrs. C. G. Lemmons, chairman.

Wayne French explained the importance of the local board in the poverty program, and Barks reported on the sewing project and the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

Serving this summer in the NYC will be Marvena King, Sue Chapman, Karen Green, Mark Newton, Gus Byrd and Billy Dogan.

Cotton Replanted

HAYTI - Farmers entered fields as they became workable. Some producers are replanting cotton for the third time.

Many have abandoned their cotton and are replanting to alternate crops.

Losses to the cotton crop are difficult to accurately estimate, but most sources feel that less than one-half the state's allotted acreage will remain in cotton.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

By Thomas G. Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Grass and weeds will be a problem in a number of corn fields as a result of the recent rains, and farmers are asking for information concerning chemicals that might be used to control these weeds.

Three chemicals are recommended for post - emergence weed control treatments in corn including 2, 4-D, Atrazine, and Linuron (Larox).

2, 4-D will control only broadleaved weeds and can be used any time there is a broadleaved weed problem except from the beginning of tasseling until after the early dough state. It should be applied at the rate of from one-fourth to one-half pound of actual acid equivalent per acre. The amine formulation of 2, 4-D should be around cotton and other crops highly susceptible to 2, 4-D damage. When ground equipment is used, drops should be used on the sprayer boom if the corn is over 10 inches tall and the weeds are considerably shorter than the corn. Adjust the nozzle height so that the edges of the spray fans cross about 2 1/2 inches above the tallest weeds. The 2, 4-D post emergence treatment often causes temporary brittleness in corn stalks; therefore, it is recommended that corn not be cultivated for at least one week after application. Caution should be exercised in apply 2, 4-D near growing cotton as this crop is often damaged by 2, 4-D.

Atrazine, when applied as a post-emergency spray, will kill existing weeds and grasses up to 1 1/2 inches tall and will give pre-emergence control of those weeds that attempt to come up after it is applied. Over all applications usually give control of annual weeds for the entire season whereas band applications require a number of cultivations to control weeds between the rows. Two pounds of actual chemical per acre will give good weed control on most soils; however, three pounds or more may be necessary on high organic matter, heavy clay soils. Label restrictions limit post-emergence applications to not later than three weeks after planting. Treatment with Atrazine is not fully effective if the soil remains dry for two to three weeks after application. If, by 10 days after application, no significant rainfall has occurred, rotary hoeing will improve the effectiveness of the chemical.

Atrazine residue in the soil may injure small grains on forage crops planted in the fall or spring following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Research results indicate that it is safe to produce corn, cotton, or sorghum on a field the year following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Sorghum can also usually be safely grown the year following treatment if the rate of atrazine application does not exceed two pounds per acre.

Linuron (Larox) can be applied as a directed spray to corn at the rate of two pounds of actual chemical per acre. A wetting agent will improve the effectiveness of this treatment. A surfactant can be used for this purpose at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray.

Plants' Reaction To Light Studied

COLUMBIA -- Why will one variety of soybeans bloom in the south and not in Missouri?

What makes corn plants put out roots at just the right spot below the ground whether the seed is planted deep or shallow?

Why do some plants fail to bulb in one area and do well in another?

Scientists, reporting at the first National Consumer News Conference of the USDA in Washington D.C. indicate long and tedious research studies are solving this mystery of nature--a certain but complicated reaction to light.

We know about photosyntheus, a plant's use of light to make food. We have observed phototyropium -- the cause of plants bending to light.

Research on the effect of light--or better described as the lack of it -- the length of darkness--indicates certain kinds of light control flowering, bulbing, runner production, root formation, stem and leaf growth and germination.

Florists in the south have extended controlled artificial light even to outdoor acreages of autumn and winter chrysanthemums --where the cash return per square foot would justify the cost --to delay flowering for timed markets.

A poinsetta for example, must have complete and continued darkness for twelve hours each day if it is to flower. Even a minute of light in the middle of each dark period will prevent flowering.

There are many other practical uses of these and other light controls of plant growth as they became better and better understood.

It may become possible to harvest more crops "on command."

Mechanical Cotton Pickers' Use Rises

HAYTI - Missouri farmers harvested 94 per cent of the 1966 cotton crop with mechanical pickers, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture.

This compared with 89 per cent in 1965.

Hand picking accounted for five per cent of all cotton harvested in Missouri and the remaining one per cent was hand snapped.

For the cotton belt, 89 per cent of the 1966 crop was machine harvested, compared with 85 per cent in the previous season. Eight per cent was hand picked, three per cent hand snapped, 61 per cent machine picked, 27 per cent machine stripped, and one per cent machine scrapped or harvested from the ground.

The average charge for ginning and wrapping a 500-pound gross weight bale in Missouri during 1966 was $20.70. In the preceding year, this was $18.82 per bale. The national average cost of ginning and wrapping was $18.30 per bale, an increase of $1 above the 1965 average.

In Missouri last season 1,574 pounds of seed cotton were required for a 500-pound gross weight bale. Hand snapped requirements averaged 2,251 pounds, and machine picked 1,601 pounds.

Missouri ginners purchased 94 per cent of the 1966 crop from growers, compared with 21 per cent purchased by ginners nationally.

The information on harvesting, ginning, and merchandising the Missouri cotton crop was collected by the cotton division of the consumer and marketing service, Hayti, with the cooperation of Missouri ginners.

CHARLESTON - Four-H Clubs in Missouri are including many events and activities in the programs to learn more about citizenship. This is reflected by the attendance of nearly 400 Missouri 4-H members who will be attending National 4-H Citizenship Short Courses in Washington, D.C. this summer. These members will represent 89 different countries in the state.

The participation from Missouri is the largest of any state in the Union. There have been 7 4-H Club Members from Scott and Mississippi Counties selected to attend the short course scheduled for July 30-August 5. Those seected are:

Mississippi County - Carl Striker, John Plummer, Dennis Rolwing, Linda Halter, and Ronnie Rolwing.

Scott County - LaDonna Reeves, Carol Glueck.

You might ask, "what is a National 4-H Citizenship Short Course?" I'd like to answer this question by stating that the 4-H Citizenship Short Course is an educational program designed to help 4-H members (1) learn the meaning of citizenship (2) understand basic principals of democracy (3) see how democracy operates in meeting the problems today (4) gain inspiration and deeper committment to the democratic way of life and (5) prepare to meet problems facing them as young citizens.

Three main types of experience make up the five day program. These include: (1) assemblies and discussions (2) field trips to many places including the Capitol and the United States Department of Agriculture (3) living and working together as democratic groups with leadership responsibilities.

The Citizenship Short Course is generally held at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C.; however due to the large number attending, some of the short courses will be held at the University of Maryland. The groups of 4-H members from Southeast Missouri will be attending the short course at the University of Maryland. The program, including the field trips, is identical regardless of where the short course is held.

Most of the 4-H members attending are 16 to 18 years of age. Two or three adults accompany each delegation. These are either 4-H Club leaders or County Extension personnel.

Stored Small Grain Must Be Protected

BENTON -- Small grain harvest is "just around the corner." Now is the time to get combines in order and to prepare the grain storage facilities on your farm.

What To Do Before Putting Small Grain in Bins:

1. Clean thoroughly of old grain and plug any holes in the bin.
2. Apply a residual spray to all of the inside surfaces with methoxychlor or malathion. Ordinarily one gallon of spray will cover 1,000 square feet.
3. Never add new grain on top of old grain.
4. Use an anticoagulant rodenticide regularly.
5. Check moisture content before storing grain (For farm storage the moisture content should be 13% or less).

Apply only premium grade malathion formulated specifically for use as a grain protectant. This can be applied as a spray or dust as the grain is elevated into storage.

1. Use 1 pint 57% premium grade malathion per 1,000 bushels of grain.
2. Mix this with a convenient amount of water (usually 2-5 gallons) and apply as the grain is elevated into the bin.

Dust formulations containing 1% premium grade malathion can be used at the rate of 50 pounds per 1,000 bushels of grain.

1. Be sure dusts are specifically labeled for use on the particular grain you wish to protect. Otherwise, the grain may be downgraded because of inert materials.
2. Add dust to the grain as it comes from the combine hopper, or as it is elevated into the bin.

After binning, cap out the grain by treating the surface grain with the protectant, and spray the bin above the grain. This helps protect against a build -up of Indian meal moth.

1. Use 1/2 pint 57% premium concentrate in 1 to 2 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet of grain surface area.
2. Or use 30 pounds of 1% premium grade malathion dust per 1,000 square feet of grain surface area.

Forcing air-particularly heated air --- through the binned grain will largely nullify the effects of the grain protectant.

Grain treated with malathion as recommended can be safely fed or sold at any time after treating.

Fumigate wheat 6 to 8 weeks after putting it in storage if malathion grain protectant is not used.

Follow the instructions on the label of the fumigant container in regard to recommended rates and precautions.

Basic Forecast Most Commonly Used by People

Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- The basic forecast is the most commonly used item transmitted over the ESSA weather wire service.

Missouri has been divided into 13 zones, each including several counties in which weather conditions are usually similar. Forecasters concentrate upon these zones when predicting changing weather conditions and write their forecasts for the entire state of Missouri. The seven southeast counties of Missouri are included in zone 13, and this is the forecast commonly read for the Bootheel.

Residents of the Bootheel may have friends, farming interests, or travel plans in areas other than Southeast Missouri. Consequently, zone forecasts are transmitted over the ESSA Weather Wire Service for southern Illinois, and northern Arkansas. State forecasts are transmitted for states surrounding Missouri, including Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee and northern Mississippi.

In general, this type of forecast covers a period from 36 to 48 hours and includes references to precipitation, cloudiness and temperatures. Severe storms are emphasized in all forecasts. Zone forecasts include more detail regarding winds and probabilities of precipitation.

These forecasts are released four times each day, about 6 hours apart. This spacing permits the forecaster to update forecasts to account for more rapid or slower movement of weather patterns, and to gradually extend his outlook as the time periods advance. Since we are aware that, at times, conditions can develop or change without advance warning to be included in the scheduled forecast, special revised forecasts are issued and transmitted when needed. It is particularly important to keep informed of forecast revisions when intense winter storms are approaching, or under conditions when severe thunderstorms or tornadoes may develop. However, less violent weather changes may interfere with work or recreation, and plans can be modified more readily if you remain in touch with weather broadcasts.

Of Interest to Homemakers

CHARLESTON - Are you satisfied with what you got for your money last year or last month? Have you been overspending or using poor buying habits? Resolve to cut out shopping sprees, bargains you don't need, and overuse of credit.

If you are not satisfied, set up a new spending plan. Base it on the goals, income, and expenses of your family.

The best way to have money available for major expenses and future goals is to earmark the money before you spend your income. If you wait until the end of the week or month, you may have nothing left to set aside.

Keep your set aside funds separate from your other funds, so you won't be tempted to spend them on impulse. Put them in a savings account or in Government bonds where they will earn interest. Interest on your savings will help them grow.

Designate a small amount of money for emergencies. Examples might be a blown out tire, or a child's broken arm. Your goal for this fund should be half of your year's income, or $3000 to $5000. Work out the amount you need to set aside each year and each month.

Some large expenses occur seasonally. These include taxes, school supplies, insurance, medical checkups, and Christmas gifts. If you set aside a definite amount each month, you spread the cost and have money to meet the expenses when they are due.

If you have debts or past due bills, earmark at least a small amount for debt payment every payday.

Your regular monthly expenses you can estimate quite accurately.

Your day-to-day expenses are your most flexible entries in your spending plan. They are the easiest to cut when you need to economize. If you need to trim them, ask for the bulletin, "Are You A Sharp Shopper?" at your County University Extension Center.

The seven southeast counties of Missouri are included in zone 13, and this is the forecast commonly read for the Bootheel.

Residents of the Bootheel may have friends, farming interests, or travel plans in areas other than Southeast Missouri. Consequently, zone forecasts are transmitted over the ESSA Weather Wire Service for southern Illinois, and northern Arkansas. State forecasts are transmitted for states surrounding Missouri, including Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee and northern Mississippi.

In general, this type of forecast covers a period from 36 to 48 hours and includes references to precipitation, cloudiness and temperatures. Severe storms are emphasized in all forecasts. Zone forecasts include more detail regarding winds and probabilities of precipitation.

These forecasts are released four times each day, about 6 hours apart. This spacing permits the forecaster to update forecasts to account for more rapid or slower movement of weather patterns, and to gradually extend his outlook as the time periods advance. Since we are aware that, at times, conditions can develop or change without advance warning to be included in the scheduled forecast, special revised forecasts are issued and transmitted when needed. It is particularly important to keep informed of forecast revisions when intense winter storms are approaching, or under conditions when severe thunderstorms or tornadoes may develop. However, less violent weather changes may interfere with work or recreation, and plans can be modified more readily if you remain in touch with weather broadcasts.

Of Interest to Homemakers

CHARLESTON - Are you satisfied with what you got for your money last year or last month? Have you been overspending or using poor buying habits? Resolve to cut out shopping sprees, bargains you don't need, and overuse of credit.

If you are not satisfied, set up a new spending plan. Base it on the goals, income, and expenses of your family.

The best way to have money available for major expenses and future goals is to earmark the money before you spend your income. If you wait until the end of the week or month, you may have nothing left to set aside.

Keep your set aside funds separate from your other funds, so you won't be tempted to spend them on impulse. Put them in a savings account or in Government bonds where they will earn interest. Interest on your savings will help them grow.

Designate a small amount of money for emergencies. Examples might be a blown out tire, or a child's broken arm. Your goal for this fund should be half of your year's income, or $3000 to $5000. Work out the amount you need to set aside each year and each month.

Some large expenses occur seasonally. These include taxes, school supplies, insurance, medical checkups, and Christmas gifts. If you set aside a definite amount each month, you spread the cost and have money to meet the expenses when they are due.

If you have debts or past due bills, earmark at least a small amount for debt payment every payday.

Your regular monthly expenses you can estimate quite accurately.

Your day-to-day expenses are your most flexible entries in your spending plan. They are the easiest to cut when you need to economize. If you need to trim them, ask for the bulletin, "Are You A Sharp Shopper?" at your County University Extension Center.

Sen. Edward V. Long

Senator Denies He Aided Hoffa

WASHINGTON — U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Missouri) on the senate floor answered charges made against him in Life magazine and called for additional funds to carry on his investigations to "expose illegal and unethical investigative techniques by government agencies."

The Senator said, "you will note that there is not one single fact in the article" to substantiate the charge that Long conducted a three-year investigation of electronic snooping in an attempt to help Jimmy Hoffa.

Senator Long said his interest in wiretapping and eavesdropping "goes back a number of years to the very beginning of my service in the Senate."

"During my first year in the Senate, 1961, I was in the forefront of the fight to prevent legalized wiretapping," Long said.

"In these early years, I made numerous speeches and wrote articles for magazines on government snooping. In 1962, I opposed another bill to legalize wiretapping," he told the Senate.

"When I was asked to take over the subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure in 1963, I inherited a file of complaints against Federal agencies for their eavesdropping activities," the Senator said.

"There have been several thousand pages of public testimony before the subcommittee and there is not a single thing in the record which would be of any aid or comfort to Jimmy Hoffa in any shape, fashion, or form," Long said.

Senator Long answered the Life allegation that he had "blunted the drive against organized crime" by noting that Attorney General Ramsey Clark, March 20, 1967, said he did not think that the Right of Privacy bill introduced by Long would "in any way limit the war on organized crime."

The Senator also quoted from a statement by Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover who said:

'All of us consider it a welcome opportunity to have had the privilege of working with you and your staff. I am certainly in accord with objectives of your Committee to establish safeguards and proper controls which will preclude the uncontrolled and indiscriminate use of these investigative techniques.'

The Missouri senator said, "As to the legal fees earned by me during the time I have served in the Senate, it should be noted that I have practiced law for thirty years. Some people apparently value my legal advice and are willing to pay for it."

He said, "I have been scrupulous to see that no conflicts of interest arise and that my duties as a lawyer do not interfere with my Senatorial duties."

Long said, "Not a cent of these legal fees has come either directly or indirectly from Jimmy Hoffa".

"Every cent made from the Practice of law or otherwise has been reported as earned paid in full. The Internal Revenue Service is well aware of this as they have seen fit to run a massive investigation on me, my family, and my close associates," Senator Long said.

"It is somewhat strange that during my entire public life, no innuendos, no insinuations, and no questions have been raised as to the propriety of my business or legal associations. Only when my Subcommittee exposed certain unlawful activities on the part of government agencies has been an attempt to smear me personally," he said.

Senator Long pledged "to continue to protect the right of privacy of all our citizens, first by seeking passage of the Right of Privacy Act of 1967 and second, by exposing illegal and unethical investigative techniques by government agencies."

Long introduced a resolution to increase funds for his subcommittee from $165,000 to $200,000. "This increase in funds is made necessary by the very investigation of snooping which has been condemned in Life. The work of the subcommittee is much greater than could be anticipated at the beginning of the year, and I introduce this resolution to ask for funds to carry on our work," the Senator said.

The attempts to reform the Electoral College System, vital to the Republic, have failed for many years. Now on the verge of success the past failures should be appraised. Plans well intentioned and of substance have been enough different to divide the forces for freedom and prevent the development of a crusade. The Reform activities were confined to Members of Congress, with insufficient activities throughout the nation. Now Senate SJR 86 and House HR 584 are the joint resolution for a Constitutional Amendment, well supported by Members of Congress with diverse philosophies except that they are staunchly for the Congressional District Plan of Two Electors from each State and one Elector from each Congressional District. Many committees of volunteers requiring little expenditure are being organized to support this District Plan Resolution. It if is wrong we should want it to fail; if right to succeed.

Pioneer Class Shortens Route To M.D. Degree

BOSTON (AP) — Stuart E. Siegel remembers a "few times when I fell asleep at my desk." But now only six years after graduation from high school, he will have an M.D. degree.

Siegel and 23 classmates have cut two years off the time normally required to become physicians.

They are the first graduates of Boston University's pioneering program to reduce the length, and cost, of medical education.

"We didn't want to develop something for geniuses — anybody can do that — but a program for the well motivated high school student, in about the top third of his class, who wanted to get on with the show," says Medical School Dean Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh Jr.

"I think we've shown that, for reasonably well motivated students, we can do the job in six years and not sacrifice quality," he says, "although we can't pass final judgment until we see what type of physicians they become."

By taking accelerated courses at the university's liberal arts college in their first two years and by attending summer classes, the students did four years of college work in the equivalent of three scholastic years. At the start of the program's third year, they entered the medical school to follow its regular four-year curriculum.

Each student saved an estimated $2,000 or more, but more important, Ebaugh says, they gained two years to "get started on a career and positions of creativity and responsibility."

Members of this and subsequent six-year groups have done as well, on the average, as students who entered the medical school after college, Ebaugh says.

Siegel, 23, of North Plainfield, N.J., is president of the entire 66-member graduating class, and of two honor societies at the school.

"There were times when you didn't know if you could keep up the work, but I think we've all come through unscathed," he says.

Genius, that power which dazzles mortal eyes,
Is oft perseverance in disguise.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious... think about these things. (Philippians 4:8, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we confess that in most of the hours of our days Thou hast been crowded out of our lives, and that thoughts contrary to the teachings of Thy Son have crept into our minds. Transform us to the end that our lives may be given new direction in keeping with the Father's will. In Thy spirit we ask. Amen.

"Skill is necessary" she said, "and education is the only possible way to obtain it. It gives you the power to gain success and happiness." Turning to her classmates and her audience she said:

Tom A. Phillips, speaking on "Faith", said:

"We have forgotten our faith in our country. Our nation has faith in you the senior class of 1967. Let us have an open mind, and be tolerant as we approach the future. Never be fond of idleness or prosperity will never be yours. A constant faith and understanding of others is vital in the nation's future."

Underwood, whose subject was "Move The Earth," said:

"Accent is on the younger generation and with proper knowledge and guidance we will be able to move the earth in the right direction. It is essential that our heritage and ideas are not wasted. Aqaba, but the Egyptian Middle East news agency said that on orders from the U.S. consul at Port Said, the Green Island changed course for an Ethiopian port. The U.S. Embassy denied any knowledge of the reported change.

Nasser's speech Friday was broadcast by Cairo radio. He said, "We will not back down on our rights in the gulf." If war breaks out, he said, "it will be total war and the objective will be to destroy Israel."

His speech came after Al Ahram, which often reflects Nasser's political thinking, said Egypt had achieved its objectives against Israel and that war would come only if Israel starts it.

"The United States is our enemy," Nasser declared. "Britain is our enemy. Both are taking sides with Israel. So long as they support Israel, they are our enemies. When we are trying to exercise our legal rights, they threaten us with war and say peace is endangered."

He said he hoped all Arab countries around Israel would form a solid front, but conceded there were difficulties with Jordan, Israel's eastern neighbor.

Cairo radio announced that the ex-King Saud of Saudi Arabia has contributed $3 million to the Egyptian army. Meanwhile, troops from his nation, now under his half-brother King Faisal, were reported by Mecca radio to be marching to frontline positions on the eastern shore of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Radio Baghdad reported that Iraq dispatched infantrymen, tanks and artillery into Syria to join more than 40,000 Syrian troops massed along Israel's northeastern border.

Friday, the Moslem sabbath, preachers in Cairo said it was Allah's command that Arab Moslems destroy Jewish Israel. In Damascus, one Moslem leader urged Syrians to "seek martyrdom and wash away with your blood the 19-year-old disgrace in Palestine." Israel was formed of Palestinian land in May 1948.

The Moslem religious organization Jamiatil Ulemae Islam in Pakistan said it told Nasser it is ready to send 5,000 volunteers to fight Israel.

The first group of American Embassy wives and children evacuated from Cairo arrived in Athens Friday night. About 118 foreigners who live in Israel arrived in Rome on a plane with 21 wives and children of personnel in the U.S. Embassy at Tel Aviv. The State Department ordered about 500 dependents of embassy personnel to leave Egypt and Israel.

Police and firemen in Beirut broke up an attempted demonstration by about 2,000 students denouncing the United States for supporting Israel.

In the upper house of India's Parliament, Foreign Minister M.C. Chagla came under fire for saying India supports Nasser's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Chagla defended his stand. He said it was in India's interest to "stand by our best friend in Arabia."

The Soviet view was presented at a rare news conference, where a spokesman said France's proposal for a Big Four peace effort "is being considered" in the Kremlin. The proposal would involve the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France.

Informants in Cairo said Thursday Nasser had reacted favorably to a proposed Big Four peace effort. But a broadcast by Damascus radio said Syria, Egypt's chief ally, had rejected the idea.

"The Arabs no longer accept guardianship on the Middle East by anyone," the broadcast said.

During a speechmaking visit to Des Moines, Iowa, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said, "Everybody should counsel everybody to keep calm and moderate in this serious situation, but I don't feel it is incumbent upon us to assume responsibility for restraining one of the parties."

He had been asked about the Soviet statement that the Western powers should restrain Israel.

In Washington, Al Ahram's claim that the Strait of Tiran was mined led to discussion among experts on how Egypt could use mines to block Israeli shipping and still not interfere with Arab vessels.

They mentioned two ways—furnishing a pilot to guide friendly ships through the minefield or using mines that would be set off electrically from shore.

Soybean Seed Should Be Innoculated

BLOOMFIELD -- Soybeans can produce approximately 70 per cent of their own nitrogen from the air if properly inoculated with nitrogen - fixing bacteria and soil PH is between 6.0 and 7.0, according to John G. Yount, extension farm management agent.

Always inoculate soybean seed before planting if it has been more than five years since inoculated soybeans were grown on the field. Be sure to use the correct bacteria inoculate made specifically for soybeans.

This will be extremely important on those fields that have grown cotton or corn for several years that in 1967 will be planted to soybeans. In fact this could be the difference between 15 and 35 bushel of soybeans per acre.

Plant 10-12 seeds per foot of row when using seed with a germination of 90% or better, according to John G. Yount, Extension Farm Management Agent. Recommended varieties planted in 36-40 inch rows will require 35 to 45 pounds of seed per acre. When planting on heavy gumbo soils, or deep planting is necessary to reach moisture 50 to 60 pounds of seed per acre may be advisable.

Seeding rate also depends on variety or size of seed, width of row, and germination of seed. The general recommendation is to plant one viable seed per inch of row. This should give 6 to 8 plants per foot of row. Close spacing encourages rapid growth of soybeans and aids in weed control, but spacing closer than one inch may seriously increase lodging.

N.Y. Meter Maids Land In Squabble

NEW YORK (AP) — The ladies wear sensible oxfords, tuck their hair under visored caps, and carry their parking tickets in little leather pouches slung bandolier-style over their uniformed shoulders. Gently, fondly at first, the city called them meter maids.

The idea was to bring the woman's touch to the job of lifting windshield wipers and snapping overtime parking tickets underneath.

Somewhere, though, public relations apparently went wrong and many New Yorkers began saying the women were arrogant and over-zealous.

Wednesday, the insults got to the meter maids. More than half the 200-woman squad stayed home, demanding that they be allowed to work in pairs. Their complaint was harassment not only from civilians but their supposed comrades in arms— the police.

"It's the public that is often antagonistic, abusive and takes liberties that it would not take with anyone else in uniform," one meter maid said. "Sometimes individual policemen are not too sympathztic either."

Hannah Clemons charged this week that a uniformed patrolman shoved her, scatched her hands and tore up her summons book when he thought she was writing a summons for a motorist. The meter maid filed an assault complaint.

A week earlier, a meter maid charged that a driver beat her and broke her nose to the shouts of "Ole!, Ole!" from an enthusiastic crowd in a Spanish-speaking neighborhood, but the allegation was thrown out of court.

The incidents, however, led to the wildcat strike and apparently a reassessment of the meter maids' worth by their boss, Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes. He said the city might just be better off without them and that the police could take over their jobs.

Negotiators for the city and the women reached a tentative agreement that pairs would be assigned to some heavy traffic areas, but the traffic department ruled out a city-wide buddy system as too expensive.

The compromise did not suit all the ladies and a number said they would continue not reporting for work.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious... think about these things. (Philippians 4:8, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we confess that in most of the hours of our days Thou hast been crowded out of our lives, and that thoughts contrary to the teachings of Thy Son have crept into our minds. Transform us to the end that our lives may be given new direction in keeping with the Father's will. In Thy spirit we ask. Amen.

"Skill is necessary" she said, "and education is the only possible way to obtain it. It gives you the power to gain success and happiness." Turning to her classmates and her audience she said:

"If you went to work at the age of 21 and drew $6,000 annually you would pay your government $40,000 in taxes at your retirement. Are you going to let the world rulers regulate your future, or are you going to give it a hand."

Tom A. Phillips, speaking on "Faith", said:

"We have forgotten our faith in our country. Our nation has faith in you the senior class of 1967. Let us have an open mind, and be tolerant as we approach the future. Never be fond of idleness or prosperity will never be yours. A constant faith and understanding of others is vital in the nation's future."

Charles Stamp, Jr., in an address on "Heritage," said that "it is the family who holds the greatest power on earth."

"The coming generations will play an important part in freedom on a national and state level," he said. "Time is important, and it will mean much to our generation, so I urge all of you to go forth and carry a great reasoning and understanding."

Underwood, whose subject was "Move The Earth," said:

"Accent is on the younger generation and with proper knowledge and guidance we will be able to move the earth in the right direction. It is essential that our heritage and ideas are not wasted. Properly used the world can be made a better place in which to live. I challenge you to take your place as you walk into the future."

The exercises opened with Glenn M. Alsup, president of the senior class, presiding, followed by the processional as the seniors walked to the band stand. The invocation was given by Steve Spear.

The senior inner choir presented a song titled, "Be Thou with us, Lord." The music was written by Bob Williamson, senior of 1963, with words by Patty Lewis, class of 1966, and the soloist part was by Patti McMullin, of class 1967, with Becky Wagner as accompanist.

The concert choir sang and arrangement of "Let Us Break Bread Together." "Moments to Remember," with words by Jeannette Meredith, class of 1967, was sung by the girls inner choir, with Linda Stacy accompanist.

Sally Ann Faulkner, presented Principal Roger Sherman, who announced the two high ranking seniors scholastically.

The class was presented by Supt. of Schools, Lynn Twitty, who was introduced by Doris Jean Ray.

Mary Ann Bruce introduced Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the school board, and Vice President Troy Stephenson, who presented diplomas to school board members who handed them to students.

The benediction was given by Darla Jeanne Scoles, followed by the recessional of "Red and Black" by the sophomore band.

Aqaba, but the Egyptian Middle East news agency said that on orders from the U.S. consul at Port Said, the Green Island changed course for an Ethiopian port. The U.S. Embassy denied any knowledge of the reported change.

Nasser's speech Friday was broadcast by Cairo radio. He said, "We will not back down on our rights in the gulf." If war breaks out, he said, "it will be total war and the objective will be to destroy Israel."

His speech came after Al Ahram, which often reflects Nasser's political thinking, said Egypt had achieved its objectives against Israel and that war would come only if Israel starts it.

"The United States is our enemy," Nasser declared. "Britain is our enemy. Both are taking sides with Israel. So long as they support Israel, they are our enemies. When we are trying to exercise our legal rights, they threaten us with war and say peace is endangered."

He said he hoped all Arab countries around Israel would form a solid front, but conceded there were difficulties with Jordan, Israel's eastern neighbor.

Cairo radio announced that the ex-King Saud of Saudi Arabia has contributed $3 million to the Egyptian army. Meanwhile, troops from his nation, now under his half-brother King Faisal, were reported by Mecca radio to be marching to frontline positions on the eastern shore of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Radio Baghdad reported that Iraq dispatched infantrymen, tanks and artillery into Syria to join more than 40,000 Syrian troops massed along Israel's northeastern border.

Friday, the Moslem sabbath, preachers in Cairo said it was Allah's command that Arab Moslems destroy Jewish Israel. In Damascus, one Moslem leader urged Syrians to "seek martyrdom and wash away with your blood the 19-year-old disgrace in Palestine." Israel was formed of Palestinian land in May 1948.

The Moslem religious organization Jamiatil Ulemae Islam in Pakistan said it told Nasser it is ready to send 5,000 volunteers to fight Israel.

The first group of American Embassy wives and children evacuated from Cairo arrived in Athens Friday night. About 118 foreigners who live in Israel arrived in Rome on a plane with 21 wives and children of personnel in the U.S. Embassy at Tel Aviv. The State Department ordered about 500 dependents of embassy personnel to leave Egypt and Israel.

Police and firemen in Beirut broke up an attempted demonstration by about 2,000 students denouncing the United States for supporting Israel.

In the upper house of India's Parliament, Foreign Minister M. C. Chagla came under fire for saying India supports Nasser's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Chagla defended his stand. He said it was in India's interest to "stand by our best friend in Arabia."

The Soviet view was presented at a rare news conference, where a spokesman said France's proposal for a Big Four peace effort "is being considered" in the Kremlin. The proposal would involve the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France.

Informants in Cairo said Thursday Nasser had reacted favorably to a proposed Big Four peace effort. But a broadcast by Damascus radio said Syria, Egypt's chief ally, had rejected the idea.

"The Arabs no longer accept guardianship on the Middle East by anyone," the broadcast said.

During a speechmaking visit to Des Moines, Iowa, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said, "Everybody should counsel everybody to keep calm and moderate in this serious situation, but I don't feel it is incumbent upon us to assume responsibility for restraining one of the parties."

He had been asked about the Soviet statement that the Western powers should restrain Israel.

In Washington, Al Ahram's claim that the Strait of Tiran was mined led to discussion among experts on how Egypt could use mines to block Israeli shipping and still not interfere with Arab vessels.

They mentioned two ways—furnishing a pilot to guide friendly ships through the minefield or using mines that would be set off electrically from shore.

Soybean Seed Should Be Innoculated

BLOOMFIELD -- Soybeans can produce approximately 70 per cent of their own nitrogen from the air if properly inoculated with nitrogen - fixing bacteria and soil PH is between 6.0 and 7.0, according to John G. Yount, extension farm management agent.

Always inoculate soybean seed before planting if it has been more than five years since inoculated soybeans were grown on the field. Be sure to use the correct bacteria inoculate made specifically for soybeans.

This will be extremely important on those fields that have grown cotton or corn for several years that in 1967 will be planted to soybeans. In fact this could be the difference between 15 and 35 bushel of soybeans per acre.

Plant 10-12 seeds per foot of row when using seed with a germination of 90% or better, according to John G. Yount, Extension Farm Management Agent. Recommended varieties planted in 36-40 inch rows will require 35 to 45 pounds of seed per acre. When planting on heavy gumbo soils, or deep planting is necessary to reach moisture 50 to 60 pounds of seed per acre may be advisable.

Seeding rate also depends on variety or size of seed, width of row, and germination of seed. The general recommendation is to plant one viable seed per inch of row. This should give 6 to 8 plants per foot of row. Close spacing encourages rapid growth of soybeans and aids in weed control, but spacing closer than one inch may seriously increase lodging.

N.Y. Meter Maids Land In Squabble

NEW YORK (AP) — The ladies wear sensible oxfords, tuck their hair under visored caps, and carry their parking tickets in little leather pouches slung bandolier-style over their uniformed shoulders. Gently, fondly at first, the city called them meter maids.

The idea was to bring the woman's touch to the job of lifting windshield wipers and snapping overtime parking tickets underneath.

Somewhere, though, public relations apparently went wrong and many New Yorkers began saying the women were arrogant and over-zealous.

Wednesday, the insults got to the meter maids. More than half the 200-woman squad stayed home, demanding that they be allowed to work in pairs. Their complaint was harassment not only from civilians but their supposed comrades in arms— the police.

"It's the public that is often antagonistic, abusive and takes liberties that it would not take with anyone else in uniform," one meter maid said. "Sometimes individual policemen are not too sympathztic either."

Hannah Clemons charged this week that a uniformed patrolman shoved her, scatched her hands and tore up her summons book when he thought she was writing a summons for a motorist. The meter maid filed an assault complaint.

A week earlier, a meter maid charged that a driver beat her and broke her nose to the shouts of "Ole!, Ole!" from an enthusiastic crowd in a Spanish-speaking neighborhood, but the allegation was thrown out of court.

The incidents, however, led to the wildcat strike and apparently a reassessment of the meter maids' worth by their boss, Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes. He said the city might just be better off without them and that the police could take over their jobs.

Negotiators for the city and the women reached a tentative agreement that pairs would be assigned to some heavy traffic areas, but the traffic department ruled out a city-wide buddy system as too expensive.

The compromise did not suit all the ladies and a number said they would continue not reporting for work.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE JEALOUS HUSBAND

As a used car salesman, Barney had many dealings over the years with Gruesome Gus. Sometimes, the deals were consummated at Barney's office and sometimes it was necessary for Barney to ink the deal at Gus's home.

Now, Gus's wife was as gruesome to look at as Gus was himself. But, in Gus's eyes, Jayne Mansfield couldn't hold a candle to her. As a result, he was extremely jealous and imagined that someone was carrying on with her behind his back. When he decided, that the someone was Barney, he let poor Barney have it right between the eyes.

When the smoke cleared, Barney's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workman's Compensation Law.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Barney's death didn't arise out of his employment. He was shot by a jealous husband."

"If it wasn't for his job," responded Barney's widow, "he'd never have gotten involved with a nut like Gus. Therefore, I'm entitled to be paid."

When the award wasn't forthcoming, Barney's widow took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you sent Barney's widow home empty handed?

This is how the Judge ruled: Barney's widow collected. The Judge held that Barney's visits to Gus's home, in the course of his employment, helped create the impression in Gus's mind that innocent Barney was having an affair with his wife; that, therefore, there was a casual connection between Barney's work and "the accident" sufficient to conclude that his death did arise out of his employment so as to meet the requirements of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

(Based upon a 1967 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

TODAYS LEGAL POINTER:

When hiring a painter, bricklayer or anyone else to do work around the home, etc., make sure he has workmen's compensation, insurance, etc., in case there is an accident and someone is injured on the job.

Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: What does a woman do when she reaches her 40th birthday and suddenly realizes she doesn't like herself?

I don't like working so hard to be cordial to friends when deep down I resent them for reasons which don't make sense. I don't like the way I have blamed others for my failures. I don't like the casual manner in which I have passed on petty gossip that should have stopped with me.

Is it possible to make one's self over? Could I change? What do you say, Ann Landers? --- TOO WELL-KNOWN TO SIGN INITIALS

Dear Well-Known: Of course you can change, and you've already taken the most important step --- recognizing the need to change and wishing to do so.

You seem filled with hositlity. Do you know why? And toward whom? Talk this out with someone whose job it is to listen. When your unload those ugly feelings you will no longer be compelled to punish your family and friends. You will like yourself better and find it easier to be civil and perhaps even gracious to those around you.

Dear Ann: I love my husband very much, but he is driving me crazy.

Paul is a dentist. He receives dozens of professional journals, advertising flyers and countless boxes of samples and "gifts" from pharmaceutical houses. This junk is sent to his office, but he brings every bit of it home. Every night he hauls in more paraphernalia, and now I can't even set up an ironing board or a sewing machine in what was supposed to be my work room. His library is so crammed full of trash I have given up trying to clean it. He has ordered me not to touch anything.

Paul has promised dozens of times to sort things out but he never gets around to it. In the meantime, I am ashamed to have guests over and I'm drowning in junk.

What's the answer? --- CROWDED

Dear Crowded: Do you have fire insurance? If you don't have it, you should. ask your insurance man to look at your place. A call from him might inspire Pack-Rat Paul to get rid of at least some of the junk. If this doesn't work, resign yourself and accept, with grace, that which you cannot change.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 and have no way of earning money for gifts, records, movies and little extras. I spoke to my father about this several months ago. We agreed that I would do certain chores around the house and receive an allowance. It started out fine but my father has gotten into the habit of borrowing money from me and not paying it back. Right now he owes me $7, and I don't think I will ever see it again.

Do you have any suggestions on how to get him to give me the money? Please don't say I am lucky to have an allowance, because I really deserve it. Thank you. --- BROKE

Dear Broke: There's no way I know of to get your $7 back unless your father decides to repay it -- and I certainly hope he does. A father who welches sets a mighty poor example.

In the future, deposit your money in a savings account where it will draw interest and not be available for "loan."

Caroline Christens USS Kennedy

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Little Caroline Kennedy stood by today to christen a mammoth aircraft carrier named for her martyred father, and President Johnson offered a prayer that the USS John F. Kennedy's years "will be years of peace."

Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her 6-year-old son, John, were on hand, too, with a throng of other family members and thousands of spectators for the ceremonial naming of the 1,000-foot vessel and the breaking of the customary bottle of champagne on the bow.

But 9-year-old Caroline and Lyndon B. Johnson shared the honors.

Johnson's remarks were prepared to precede the actual christening.

Because John F. Kennedy understood that strength is essential to sustain freedom and recognized that we cannot afford to mark time or stand in place, the President said, he asked Congress in 1963 for the funds for this $188.55 million carrier.

"In the year 2000—and beyond," Johnson said, "this majectic ship we christen today may still be sailing on the oceans of the world. We pray that her years will be years of peace. But if she must fight, both the flag she flies and the name she bears will carry a profound message to friend and foe alike."

No president, Johnson said, understood his nation's historic role and purpose better than John F. Kennedy, and no man knew the burdens of that role more deeply.

"And no man," he said, ever gave more.

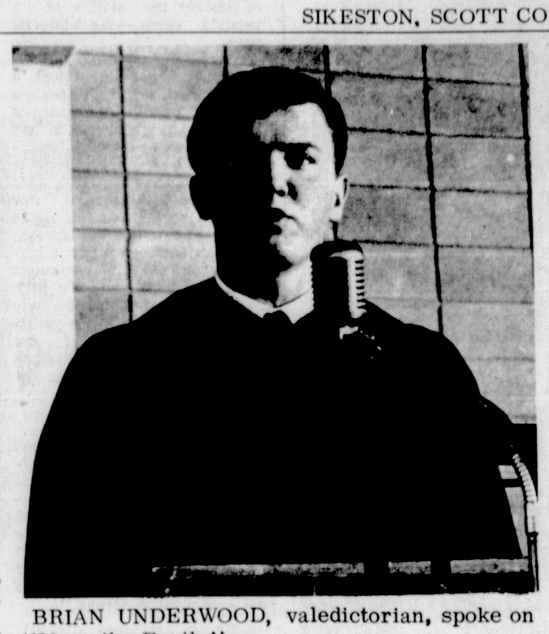
The present President honored the former president in another way today by announcing en route to the Virginia ceremony that he had signed Friday night a bill making the house where Kennedy was born 50 years ago next Monday the John Fitzgerald Kennedy national historic site.

"For years to come," Johnson said in a statement, "for great numbers of visitors it will make more rich, more vivid and more meaningful the memory of a great American."

President Johnson, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Richard Cardinal Cushing, former astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., 33 Kennedy family members, numerous New Frontier presidential aides, a raft of admirals, and several Cabinet officials were among 35,000 expected for the noon ceremonies at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.

The Kennedys had Navy plane shuttle service from New York, Washington and Boston to come here. From the late president's 76-year-old mother, Rose Kennedy, to grandchildren — 19 strong — the Kennedys turned out to salute the $188,500,000 carrier that will honor the memory of the nation's 35th president. Only one other president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had a similar honor.

Kennedy would have observed his 50th birthday this Monday. A lover of ships and the sea, he earned a hero's medal as a Navy lieutenant for his World War II exploits in rescuing his crew after their PT-boat was rammed by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific.



BRIAN UNDERWOOD, valedictorian, spoke on "Move the Earth."

VICTORIA SCHINDLER, salutatorian, addressed the audience on "Education."

TOM A. PHILLIPS gave an address on "Faith."

CHARLES R. STAMP JR., talked on "Heritage."

Blackout Cripples City

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A power failure crippled downtown Cincinnati today, disrupting normal city activity and forcing three major department stores to close.

All power in a square-mile downtown area was shut down at 6:30 a.m. so repairs could be made to a cable failure that had touched off the power crisis at 11:35 p.m. Friday.

Hotel and office building elevators were at a standstill Essential electric facilities in restaurants and other business places were out.

Police reported numerous instances of looting and vandalism.

The first indication of trouble came with the short-circuiting of the 13,200 volt cable strung on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway bridge over the Ohio River, which also feeds power to Newport, Ky., at the southern end of the span.

A utility spokesman said the short-circuit caused a feed-back explosion to a generator in the company's West End plant, thus spreading the darkness.

The city's two newspapers virtually idle, the electric shortage causing metal pots, essential to type setting, to cool.

Off-duty police were called into service and poured into the downtown areas of Cincinnati and the two neighboring Kentucky cities where several store windows were smashed.

Police had reports of "unruly crowds" in several places, but all were reported under control.

All lights went out in part of downtown Cincinnati about 11:35 p.m., but remained out only about a short time. Some areas of Newport and Covington were in darkness for about two hours.

When the lights came back on in Cincinnati, they were dim and flickered continuously for about two hours. A spokesman said some areas still had low voltage hours later.

Some 1,550 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have been on strike against the company since May 10.

Caruthersville Marine Killed In Auto Crash

HOLLY RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — Two marines stationed at nearby Camp LeJeune Marine base were killed early today when their car collided head-on with a Louisiana family's automobile.

Killed were Sgt. Leroy Wilson, 21, of Caruthersville, Mo., and Sgt. Paul A. Crabtree, 24, of Camp LeJeune.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Wilson of Velle Chasse, La., and their 9-year-old daughter, Valarie, were taken to James Walker Memorial Hospital at Wilmington in satisfactory condition.

Investigating officers said the car in which the Marines were riding swerved into the left lane of U.S. 17, smashing head-on into the other car.

Tax Values Rise at New Madrid

NEW MADRID - Jesse H. Wilkins, county clerk, reports the assessement books for taxes for 1967 filed by the assessor shows an increase in valuation for tax purposes of $2,005,373, a 4½ increase over 1966.

This will place the total valuation at $46,739,926 exclusive of railroad and utility values, which were set by the state tax commission, at $10,488,338 for 1966.

The larger portion of the increase was on farm lands, which represented an increase of $1,648,829, with per acre values averaging $74.40. This item accounted for $30,993,372 of the total value. Town lots with the improvements increased by $159,675, and now stand at $7,656,725.

The 1967 personal property values were $6,815,575, indicating an increase of $174,449 over 1966 values. Motor vehicles, have been reduced on the average. However, 677 more vehicles were assessed and the total value is unchanged. Farm machinery, household goods, locally assessed railroad and utilities and other property were increased slightly, accounting for the 2-1/2 percent increase.

Merchant and manufacturers values were up slightly to $1,008,254, a $22,420 increase. The number of merchants and manufacturers decreased from 504 to 492.

Among the items listed on the personal assessment book were 26 horses,, 26 mules, 783 head of cattle, 484 hogs, 1,000 head of poultry and 9,977 motor vehicles.

Wilkins indicated he was expecting a slight increase in values set by the state tax commission on railroads and utilities because of expansion. These values will not be available until July 10.

Gas Stove Stolen

A portable gas stove valued at $40 was reported stolen from a trailer parked for display at the Homestead Distributing Co., 1401 East Malone.

Ellis Atchison, manager, said the stove was noticed missing three days ago. The theft was reported to police Friday.

Dorothy Brown, East Prairie, reported to police Friday night that her purse containing about $4 and identification papers was taken from her car Friday night while it was parked at the 21 Club, 1141 West Malone.

Thant Urges Caution

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant called today for a breathing spell in the Middle East crisis to permit a diplomatic effort to solve underlying causes of Arab-Israeli conflict. He urged restraint on both sides.

Thant expressed fear that a clash between Israel and Egypt over Israeli shipping through the Strait of Tiran will "inevitably set off a general conflict" in the Middle East.

Thant's views, given in a report to the U.N. Security Council in New York, followed a speech Friday night by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt in which he said his Egyptian regime is aware that the blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba could lead to war with Israel.

Thant was reporting on his talk in Cairo Wednesday with Nasser and other Egyptian leaders.

Israel was reported avoiding an immediate challenge to Nasser's announced blockade of its direct route to Iranian oil and other cargoes from the East. But it has said it will fight to keep the gulf open.

President Johnson met with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban on the crisis Friday night, but neither would comment on their discussions. Israel wants U.S. backing to keep the gulf open.

The Soviet Union has called on the United States and other Western nations to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

A test of Egyptian control measures over the Strait of Tiran, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba, was possible today—but not by an Israeli ship.

A Danish freighter, identified as the Estelle Maersk, was due at the Jordanian port of Aqaba, two miles from Israel's gulf port of Elath. It was the first ship since the blockade was announced to come to Aqaba without first going through the Suez Canal.

The canal bars shipping to Israel. Four other ships which have come to Aqaba in the last three days already had been checked by Egypt when they entered Suez.

The skipper of one of those four, the West German freighter Stolzenfels said Friday night he saw no physical sign of a blockade in the Strait of Tiran.

Cairo's semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram had reported that Egyptian authorities in the strait had stopped and searched the Stolzenfels. It also said Egypt had mined the strait.

The American freighter Green Island also was expected at

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day was first observed on May 30, 1868, on order of Gen. John A. Logan, Commander of the G.A.R. As time passed, it has come to be a day for memorial services and decoration of graves of soldiers from other wars as well. In most States - all but five - it is a legal holiday.

If your agenda for Memorial Day doesn't call for taking time to pay honor to our war dead, perhaps a reading of the following will prompt you to change your plans. These are quotes from a tract entitled "Brief Notes on the Ways and Means of 'Beating' and Defeating the Draft." It is being widely circulated on college campuses.

"1. Be a C.O. (conscientious objector). Write your local draft board requesting . .form SSS-150.

THE LAST SCHOOL BELL

For millions of school children, the time of respite from books, homework and tests is almost at hand. Thoughts of a summer job, the playground, a camping trip, or a swim in the neighborhood pool are intruding more and more on academic pursuits. Both the young and the old need a time to refresh their spirits, soak up what they have learned and take a look at the course of their life and work.

For many high school and college students, the last school bell of this year will mean graduation and the greater responsibility of putting to use what they have learned in productive work in their communities, their nation and their families. The habit of learning is the most valuable lesson they can carry away from their days of formal education. The ability to learn and adapt is part of living in this fast changing world. It is still true that knowledge without action is futile, but it is more valid than ever before to observe that action without knowledge is disaster.

The last school bell of the year brings change. It brings the fun of summer. May it bring also a time for young people to gain new resolve to pursue the knowledge that awaits them in the schoolrooms to come and in all the years of their lives that lie ahead.

Alcohol has been found to be a contributing factor in more than half of the fatal traffic accidents, according to independent surveys.

The Alcohol connection was established through post-mortem studies of persons killed in accidents. The studies have been conducted in a number of states, and the results agree remarkably well.

A Travelers Insurance Companies spokesman said in an annual report on highway statistics, that each individual will have to make up his own mind about his personal drinking habits and driving a car. "Obviously," the spokesman added, "the driver enormously increases his chances of being in an accident - involving not only himself but others - when he drives after drinking. And the research on this subject shows clearly that he increases his risk with each additional drink."

Last year more than 52,500 persons were killed in highway accidents, an 8 percent increase over 1965. Additionally, 4,400,000 persons were injured. Beyond the human suffering, the economic loss as a result of the traffic accident problem amounted to $9.8 billion.

The Travelers report also showed that in 1966 more than 286,800 pedestrians became casualties - 40 percent of the total deaths occurred on weekends - four out of five personal injury accidents occurred in clear weather on dry roads - and almost 32 percent of the drivers involved in fatal accidents were under 25 years of age.

"Every man, woman and child has a stake in the traffic safety problem. Each must do all in his or her power to eliminate the terrible carnage on our highways," the spokesman added.

BEAUTIFUL -- A LITTLE LATER

There are variety of ways a lady can make herself less attractive. They include stretch pants or short, short shorts that are overstuffed . . . a cigarette dangling from the lips . . . garish, gruesome make - up . . . high - pitched shrieks and cackles from too many Martinis . . . far - out hairdos or weirdo clothes.

But for guaranteed strain on feminine allure you just can't beat the good old hair curler--with or without those quaint covering caps, which can deglamorize any gal all by themselves.

Just why the ladies are willing to appear in public looking like this is beyond the comprehension of mere man.

But there may be a clue in the story of the bride who showed up for the wedding with her hair in curlers.

"What on earth?" gasped her bridesmaid.

"Well, for heaven's sake," replied the bride, "don't you think I want to look my best for the wedding reception?"

And that, gentlemen, is part of what makes the girls so delightfully mystifying.

THREATENING THE VOICE OF THE PRESS

In many states at various times, legislation has been introduced, and in every case rejected, which would have required editorial expression in newspapers and other publications to be signed. Such a proposal is being considered in Kentucky, where the House of Representatives has passed a bill requiring editorial identification. The Senate probably will not pass the measure. No better way could be thought of to destroy the stature of a paper's voice -- its editorial page.

Commenting on this, Editor & Publisher observes: "Such a requirement would destroy the editorial page as the voice of the newspaper and turn it into a collection of individual opinions. We don't think there is any more justification for this legislation than there is for a law requiring a politician to reveal who writes his speech. A newspaper editor or publisher stands behind the comments expressed on the editorial page regardless of who put them into words just as a politician will stand behind the thoughts he utters regardless of who puts them on paper for him to read."

THE DAY'S RESULT

AMERICAN BISON: MOST USEFUL BEAST

The buffalo was not only meat for the Indian; he was just about everything, the Catholic Digest explains.

Dried meat was pounded fine, then mixed with berries, put into watertight skins, and covered with melted tallow to make pemmican, a long-lasting food. Hair was woven into pillows and saddle pads. Marrow was dug out of the bones and preserved in bladder skins to be used later as food. The skull was used in ceremonial dances.

Hides were turned over to the squaws, who fashioned them into tepees, shields, bedrolls, ropes, winter robes, snowshows, and boats. Jawbones were the children's delight; they used them for sliding. Sinews provided bow-strings and sewing materials. The stomach was made into pails and bags.

Bones became clubs or tools. Hooves were made into glue. Horns were fashioned into headdresses, weapons, drinking vessels, spoons, and toys. Skin was used for thongs, and buffalo chips for fuel.

No wonder the Indians regarded the buffalo as a gift from the Great Spirit. Before the coming of the white man, his buffalo numbered more than 50 million. Today, some 7,000 are left.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- There is reason to believe that President Gamal Abdel Nasser has decided upon a stupendous gamble calculated to make him kingpin of the entire Arab world. Otherwise he will go down in ignominious defeat.

Real fact is that never in his two decades of rule over Egypt had Nasser been lower in prestige -- up until this week. Now he has electrified the Arab world and is riding so high that it's impossible for his bitter enemies, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia and King Hussein of Jordon, to refuse him support.

If he comes out on top of this winner - take - all gamble, he will be the first man in a thousand years able to dictate to the Arab world. If he loses, he will not have lost much, because at the rate things were going in Egypt, he would have been kicked out of power.

Here is what he faced at home:

1. A long and expensive war with 70,000 Egyptian troops pinned down in Yemen, causing such bitterness among young officers that Nasser feared rebellion if they returned home. In a war against Israel, however, they will fight enthusiastically.

2. The revolt of the Moslem league. This included the sons of some of Egypt's best families, and came within hours of succeeding.

2. The revolt of the Moslem league. This included the sons of some of Egypt's best families, and came within hours of succeeding.

3. Food. The United States cancelled its wheat agreement with Egypt, and it will not be long before people will be hungry.

4. Business. The Egyptian economy is limping. There have been business failures.

5. Nasser's balance of payments is so bad that he has not been able to keep up his installments to the World Bank.

All these have now been relegated into the background-- by accident or design -- as a result of the showdown over Israel.

NASSER ABANDONS CAUTION

Significantly, Nasser has been a restraining force among other Arab leaders in the past when it came to military designs on Israel. He has used caution, has argued that the Arabs has lacked a united general staff, were not prepared for war. This time Nasser has been the opposite. He could have satisfied the Arab world merely by expelling Aquaba. Instead Nasser took on the western world by closing the Tiran Straits.

In my opinion he did this, first, because of his deteriorating position at home; second, because he knew he would have tacit Soviet support.

The diplomats are still guessing as to what he and Foreign Minister Gromyko talked about when they conferred in Cairo. But, regardless of what they discussed, Nasser is a shrewd enough strategist to know that the Soviet, being embarrassed by the United States in South Vietnam, would like nothing better than to embarrass the United States in the Near East.

U.S. LOSSES

If Nasser wins a military showdown with Israel the losses to the United States will be devastating. Every other Arab leader, no matter how friendly to the United States, would be under his thumb. Libya, which distrusts and dislikes Nasser, would be called upon to cancel the giant American Wheelus Air Force Base in Tripoli.

There would be pressure to cancel the American Cummunications Center in Eritrea, a station vital to tracking our satellites.

American oil investments in the Near East could come under the control of an Arab oil combine which could set both prices and royalties.

Should Nasser emerge as the hero who defeats Israel there would be immediate revolutions against the moderate monarchies of the Near East -- Morocco, Jordan and Libya -- which have given their countries progressive, stable governments.

Several recent factors point to the probability that Nasser has been preparing for a showdown with Israel for some time.

The official Egyptian newspaper has been running a series of articles on American foreign policy, highly critical of the United States. U. S. policy is described as a huge spider web, seeking to ensnare small countries to be devoured. The last article showed Egypt breaking loose from the last strand of the spider web -- namely, the food agreement with the United States. It so happened that this agreement literally prevented Egyptian starvation during the last five years, and it was ended not by Nasser but by the Johnson administration.

Another significant event was the fact that Nasser recently recalled his long - time Ambassador to Washington, Dr. Mostafa Kamel. Ambassador Kamel had been in the United States nine years, was near the top in the diplomatic corps, and carried influence for better American-Egyptian relations. Suddenly this spring he was recalled.

Should the United States get involved in any war between Israel and its Arab neighbors, it would get no help whatsoever from the French, who long have been smarting over the manner in which President Eisenhower intervened in 1956 to prevent the French - British - Israeli crackdown on Nasser for seizing the Suez Canal. At that time Israeli troops were along the canal, while French and British troops were at its Mediterranean end when Eisenhower telephoned Premier Guy Mollet in Paris and Prime Minister Anthony Eden in London demanding that they get out of Egypt.

They did. But that withdrawal caused the downfall of the Eden government, and the tremendous skid of British prestige east of Suez even since.

The French, who have recovered from the Suez debacle more dramatically than the British, are almost publicly gleeful over the predicament in which the United States finds itself today -- bogged down in Vietnam on one side of Asia and forced to defend commitments it has made on the other side of Asia.

Operating Engineers Union Sets World Record -- Strikes For $92 - a -Week per Man Pay Hike

Washington, D.C.: -- There's something about a bulldozer--or, rather, the chap who operates one --which sets him apart from the common man. And it is giving the government another set of jitters at a moment of a surplus supply of the shakes.

That something is the bulldozers' union, the Operating Engineers, which struck about a billion dollars worth of heavy construction in Ohio as far back as May 3 -- in a bid for pay hikes which would bring them a $500 week, inclusive of normal overtime pay.

Since the Ohio Local (18) is statewide and has some 12,000 members, the pencil brigade over at the Labor Dept. reckons a union victory would cost over $50 million in two years.

And since most of them work on highways, water operation, city streets, airports, pipelines, flood control projects, dams, etc., the budget - burdened White House figures the public eventually will have to pay.

Not just the Ohio public -- but all the people in the U.S.A. The Ohio construction work, struck on May 3, is second only to that in California. And it is watched closely by all the locals of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO). Whatever Local 18 racks up, the others are sure to follow.

Not the least of those concerned is the contracting and construction brass in the Pentagon. Among the work shut down in Ohio are U.S. Corps of Engineers operations typical of what is needed in scores of other states. Thus any blue - ribbon package gained by the Ohio Local soon will become standard elsewhere.

There's been a deadlock between the local and the contractors association which handles some 92 per cent of all heavy construction work in the state. These builders are part of the Associated General Contractors whose president generally is a soft - spoken chap. He is B.B. Armstrong, of Roswell, New Mexico. He is an old friend. I know him to be a chap who is no eternal enemy of unionism or reason either. But his calm was shaken when news came of the demands of those who handle bulldozers, big cranes, and the huge earth - moving equipment.

The union's "request" was for a pay raise of $92 a week per man for straight time -- and $121.70 a week with routine overtime. This did not include penalty time, or hazard time or special holiday overtime which sometimes develops when a contractor drives to meet his deadline after acts - of - God delays or, as in this case, the acts of some mighty men.

These appear to be the highest demands in recent traceable industrial history. Armstrong says it's the "worst and most inflationary wage demand I've heard of throughout the entire country."

Union spokesmen here say it is reasonable since their men don't work the year round -- and the cost of living is high anyway.

Over at the White House executive office, a colleague of Gardner Ackley, chief of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, simply moaned something which sounded like: What ever happened to those 3.2 and 5 per cent guide lines we're supposed to hold?

Without a mini - computer one really can't tell. After conversations with the human adding machines in various agencies, it appears that the Ohio Local 18 is asking for an average of from 46 to 55 per cent increase over the current base pay.

The local is led by the ailing Frank Converse who has been hospitalized. He's held sway since smoke signal days -- or about 50 years. So he's a man with a fixed position as are those who are now in more active leadership.

So the strike rolled over more than $738 million in heavy highway construction projects across the state, and $350 million in other public works. In all, the estimate is that 132,000 men are idle officially (many are working elsewhere according to reports).

And so the public has reason to ponder issues more critical even than a demand for a $92 a week increase per man.

'It is the issue of the balance of power, the issue or economic strength concentrated in a regional organization, no matter what it be, and the issue of the public's eventual role in these massive jousting tournaments -- which affect the nation, the average worker, the professional, too, who looks back at the years of study at advanced institutes and wonders how long it would take to master a bulldozer.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

BR'ER LYNDON'S TARBABY

EVERY TIME Br'er Rabbit hit that tarbaby a lick he just got hisself more gummed up, and Br'er Lyndon's war in Vietnam has got him likewise -- hands, feet and head all buried in de tar and he cain't git loose noway.

So the President is over on the minus side of the popularity polls. Those who have lashed their political fortunes to his chariot are growing frantic as the national sense of frustration and the winds of criticism rise. Clearly, the President finds himself in a situation faced by none of his predecessors.

The I-told-you-soers among the hawks (count me in) are pointing to the bankruptcy of the theory that if we would only fight the war in a half-way manner there would be escalation and the reds would soon grow tired. Escalation has most plainly occurred, and Moscow, which was only huffing and puffing a year ago, is now boldly pouring in its latest hardware and direly predicting total war if we fight to win.

The doves, of course, are flapping their wings over the rivers of blood and cooing that we must produce peace with honor by negotiation, as if that weren't what L.B.J. has been performing nip-ups to do all along.

THE WORLD Council of Churches, under Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, is behaving predictably. Old Bertrand Russell and Jean Paul Sartre have had their grotesque "trial" of America for atrocities. Martin Luther King has shucked his robes of moderation and joined Stokely Carmichael and Floyd McKissick in a strange campaign that seems to say that Uncle Sam must withdraw from the world arena until all their demands are satisfied.

And, of course, international communism and its fellow travelers are having a field day organizing anti-American riots abroad and Flag and draft card burnings at home. The Communists well understand the size of the stakes.

FOR COMMUNISM is in deep trouble. Its economic contradictions are catching up with it. The Kremlin's control over the world movement is slipping. The satellites are growing fractious and reaching out toward the West. Revisionism is well advanced in Lenin's homeland in an atmosphere of mixed hope and bewilderment. And China is getting its latest news off the walls.

Communism needs a major victory. Vietnam is the place. For in Vietnam the Reds thought they had found a formula for the easy conquest of most chaotic new nations. It was ridiculously simple -- the assassination of 10,000 village chiefs to destroy the local power structure of people who had little sense of national identity. It was minority rule by progressive terror. And it was working.

Did the people want that rule? How do the left - wingers explain that in last autumn's constitutional elections 80% of the South Vietnamese went to the polls against the warnings and the threats of the Viet Cong?

BUT OUR big mistake was to confuse Vietnam with Korea. We fought a half - way war in Korea, too. President Truman dismissed Gen. Douglas MacArthur because he wanted to bomb above the Yalu for a clear - cut military victory. Still, at Panmunjom we gained a defensible truce line on the 38th parallel because the terrain was open and the line was flanked by seas which we controlled.

South Vietnam, on the other hand, is bordered along its whole length by a jungle sanctuary. We repeatedly beat battalions that fled a few kilometers into "neutral" Cambodia and sat down to regroup and rearm. Without the doctrine of hot pursuit not even the most superior forces can win a lasting victory.

So we thrust and retreated. We tried truces. We prostrated ourselves to get somebody -- anybody -- to the conference table. And as the doves and the dupes and the hard - core Reds made noises that gave the impression America's determination was about to collapse, it was not surprising that Moscow, Peking and Hanoi would conclude that with a little more pressure we will pull out. So the ante keeps going up and brave men die.

Of course, the situation is dangerous. But in fairness to Br'er Lyndon let's imagine what would have happened if he hadn't tackled the tarbaby. Remember, the cynical campaign of murder and terror was working. It would have worked against Laos and Cambodia, too. It is already being tried in northeast Thailand. Who thinks Malaya could have survived? And would Indonesia have dared kick out the Reds if the rest of Southeast Asia had already fallen?

And what about Africa -- most of it a cinch for conquest by selective assassination?

LYNDON JOHNSON'S decision was a correct one. Its application was faulty. Maybe he listened too little to his generals and too much to the Whiz Kid and the Miss Nancys of the State Department. But recently he has shown a will to take risks for victory. They would have been little risks a year ago. Now they are big ones.

We could blunder into an automatic war tomorrow. But if we scuttle now, atomic war will be a cinch the day after.

Cape May County, New Jersey, has a very large retirement colony and the oldsters love to sit and gossip in the boardwalk pavilions and on benches along the business streets. I overheard one old-timer telling a young veteran from Vietnam: "When I was in the service, I used to tell the generals and colonels where to get off!"

"What was your position?' asked the Vietnam veteran.

"Elevator operator in the Pentagon," answered the old man.

The Need For Roots

We live in an age when one out of five families move their residence each year. Neighbors, and-marks, foundations seem to be constantly changing. But the real roots in our contemporary world are not simply the roots of hometown or familiar places. The real roots are the roots of the people of God, the church. When one is a part of God's true people, His church, he has roots that go back for centuries, that go back to Bethlehem and Calvary and give him rootedness in an unrooted age. If you need roots, TRINITY BAPTIST CHURCH, 110 E. Center St., would invite you to worship with us and begin to find a true foundation under your life.

Sincerely
Dr. Robert E. Lively, Jr.

Football Merger Plans Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — The office of president of the National Football League has become an unpaid, temporary position under the new pro football setup of ever-increasing centralized authority in Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns, will double in brass as a personable NFL president with a fine public relations sense while running his own club's affairs, at least until the next league meetings in February.

Rozelle, busily reorganizing his office and expanding the staff of the commissioner to implement the full merging of the NFL, and American Football League by the 1970 target date, thus gave up one of the two hats

As both commissioner of the two leagues and commissioner of the NFL, Rozelle had found himself in a difficult position. Now Modell will make all statements involving the NFL from his Cleveland office and will work with Rozelle on fulfilling the merger.

Milt Woodard, elected president of the AFL after the June merger, will continue in that post. He is a salaried official.

"Since we announced our plans to merge into a single expanded league by 1970 last June 8," said Rozelle, "we have met in the same hotel, held a common draft and arranged preseason games for this season. At this meeting we have seen Cincinnati added as the 10th

Marichal Notches Eighth

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Juan Marichal entertains the Los Angeles Dodgers, it's a Candlestick Park breeze.

But whenever — and wherever — Roberto Clemente and the Cincinnati Reds run into each other, it's a fight for survival.

Marichal became the major leagues' first eight-game winner Friday night by scattering six hits as the San Francisco Giants trimmed the visiting Dodgers 4-1.

Clemente, meanwhile, continued his one-man crusade against Cincinnati by stroking a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 nod over the National League leaders.

In other NL action, Philadelphia topped St. Louis 7-4 on Don Lock's three-run homer, New York nipped Atlanta 1-0 on Don Cardwell's three-hitter and Houston flattened Chicago 17-4 in a club-record scoring spree.

In taming the Dodgers for the 14th time in 14 Candlestick Park decisions, Marichal ran his winning string to eight after three setbacks at the start of the season. The Dominican dandy has beaten the Dodgers twice this year.

Clemente, the league's leading hitter, settled an 11-day-old score with Cincinnati by breaking up the extra-inning struggle at Pittsburgh. When the clubs opened a three-game series at Cincinnati on May 15, Clemente drove in seven runs with three homers and a double, only to come out on the short end of an 8-7, 10-inning decision.

Home runs by Jim Hart, in the second inning, and Ollie Brown, in the fourth, made Marichal's job an easy fling. He blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when Willie Davis' run-scoring single averted a shutout.

The Reds, however, gave Clemente a dizzy run for his money. He singled in the first inning, was robbed of an extra-base hit by right fielder Tommy Harper in the third, and chopped a hard grounder in the fifth that got through shortstop Leo Cardenas for a two-run error.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, the Pirates' superstar struck out. With the game deadlocked 4-4 in the ninth, he reached base on another error by Cardenas, but was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on a passed ball.

Finally, after Cincy reliever Darrell Osteen loaded the bases on a walk and two hit batters in the 12th, Clemente delivered the hit to left field that broke a 5-5 tangle.

Lock capped a four-run Philadelphia rally in the eight inning with his three-run blast after getting a life when Cards second baseman Phil Gagliano misjudged his foul pop outside first base.

Johnny Callison crashed a pair of homers for the Phillies and Rich Allen singled across the tying run in the eighth before Lock connected.

The Mets' Cardwell made Jerry Buchek's second inning home run stand up against the Braves, who have scored in only one inning of their last three starts and have had just eight hits during that stretch.

The Astros walloped four homers, good for 10 runs, in topping their previous high of 16 runs, scored against the Mets in 1962. Rusty Staub and Joe Morgan hit three-run homers while Jim Wynn and Ron Davis belted two-run shots.

Boaters will meet at the War Drum at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

A SALE ON EVERY CALL

"You can take all the sales-making cliches you want, cut or sliced them any way you wish, and they all boil down to this: If a salesman, just before entering the prospect's presence, will say to himself, Buster, there's going to be a sale made here today -- either I'm going to sell this man on the value of my product or services, or he is going to sell me on the idea he doesn't need them! -- if he'll do that, he simply can't miss."

Drabowsky Gets Win In Relief Job For Orioles

BY HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't look now, but here come the Orioles.

Somewhat sluggish from a stumbling start, Baltimore has weaved its way up through the American League standings and today Hank Bauer's defending world champions are breathing the heady air of third place.

It's not the rarified atmosphere of first place which the Orioles enjoyed almost all of last year, but it's much better than the dingy cellar surroundings they occupied just two weeks ago.

The Birds won their ninth game in the last 12 Friday night, nipping Boston 4-3 on strong relief pitching of Moe Drabowsky. In other American League games, Cleveland edged New York 4-3, Minnesota blanked Kansas City 5-0, Detroit battered Washington 10-5 and California split a douleheader with Chicago, winning 7-2 before losing 2-1.

Baltimore jumped out to a 4-0 lead and Dave McNally struck out seven Boston hitters in the first four innings.

But the Red Sox knocked him out in the fifth with run-scoring singles by Reggie Smith and Mike Ryan. That brought on Drabowsky, and the veteran reliever allowed only one hit the rest of the way.

Drabowsky got credit for the victory, his third this season and ninth straight over two years with the Orioles.

Dave Johnson scored Baltimore's first run after a first inning double and drove in two more with a single in the fourth.

Charlie Smith's two-base throwing error in the eighth inning set up Cleveland's winning run against the Yankees.

Joe Azcue rapped a sharp grounder to third and when Smith threw wild on the hit, Azcue raced all the way to third. Pedro Gonazlez followed with a base hit.

Max Alvis accounted for the first three Cleveland runs with a third inning home run against loser Fritz Peterson. Steve Hargan, who went the distance for the victory, allowed all three Yankee runs in the second when New York bunched five singles.

The Twins jolted Jim Nash for three runs in the first inning and got five-hit pitching from Jim Merritt to blank the Athletics.

FARM LABOR BULLETIN

STATE SUMMARY

Northwest Missouri reports corn planting and replanting nearly completed after a week of relatively good weather.

Recruitment underway for boys and girls to hoe corn in St. Joseph, Maryville, Lexington and Marshall areas. Lexington reports 5 crews of school youth consisting of 186 members. They have started hoeing volunteer corn out of hybrid fields.

Kansas City strawberry crop loss was nearly 75 per cent, with the apple crop a complete loss, however, prospects are favorable for a peach crop in that area.

Extensive rains of 6 to 9 inches reported in parts of the Bootheel the past week.

About half the growers in the Kennett-Caruthersville areas are expected to seek permission to plant soybeans instead of their allotted cotton acreage. Some growers have replanted cotton two and three times.

113 year-round and 53 unfilled seasonal farm jobs reported as of this date.

22 year-round and 1,433 seasonal farm workers were placed the past week.

8 crews totaling 1,063 workers were sent outstate last week, mostly to the Kentucky strawberry harvest.

This is the week "Hire Day" at the Marshall Farm Hand Training Center will be Wednesday, May 24 with a new class starting May 29.

SOUTHEAST

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway - Telephone: Granite 1-2731.

Planting and replanting, some for the third time, in progress. Some area growers restricted from fields due to excessive moisture. Four-county area has many variable conditions (most not good) of crops and land. Greatest needs for labor are short - time extra help in planting. Demands for regular year-round hands stable and continue to be only for well qualified farm equipment operators. Out-area movement expected to shift from Kentucky to Illinois strawberries next week.

Farm Labor Information Station and Rest Camp, Route 2, Sikeston:

The Sikeston Rest Camp served 426 migrants with 23 enroute to Illinois; 62 going to Indiana; 293 to Michigan; 31 to Ohio; 3 were returning to Texas; and 14 had Wisconsin as next work area.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxedo 8-3184.

Extensive rain in Dunklin County has caused thousands of dollars of crop damage. About fifty percent are expected to seek permission to plant soybeans instead of replanting cotton. Many farmers have had to replant cotton twice already this year, percentage will probably increase during next week. Strawberry harvest is completed in the south end of the county with harvesting going good in the north end. Several workers are being used chopping watermelons and cleaning out the strawberries. A great number of farmers are replanting cotton this weekend. 983 seasonal placements and 270 order holding placements were made this week. Labor supply has been no problem up to this date, May 19, 1967.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street - Telephone: Edison 3-2416.

The weather is still hampering all farm activities. Heavy rains the first of the week, up to 7 or 8 inches in some areas, has caused considerable damage. The total effect of the rains and cool weather on the cotton crop is hard to predict at this time. Some are predicting that we will wind - up with about a 25 percent cotton crop.

West Plains: 111 Walnut Street - Telephone: 256-3158.

Strawberry season over in area, quality poor due to cool wet weather. Have referred two farm hands to Maryville area, job development underway on two General Farmers for caretaker jobs.

Cape Girardeau: 231 North Main Street - Telephone: Edgewater 5-6666.

Demand for farm laborers continues to exceed available supply. Strawberry harvest in full swing. Adequate supply of labor available to complete harvest. Youth now being registered for summer farm jobs. All interested in farm work are urged to contact this office by June 15.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street-Telephone: Sunset 5-9606.

No farming has been done due to 5 inches of rain that has fallen over this area during the past week. This office has referred 5 workers to Hienz Canning Company. Several more young men have signed up and are willing to go. Local High School are being contacted to see if any 18 year old high school boy is interested in cannery work this summer.

Labor Mobility Office, Poplar Bluff.

Five farm hands are available for permanent out of area work.

Immunizations at Richland CAA

GRAY RIDGE -- The Richland CAA met Monday at the grade school with 26 attending.

President James Rankins called the meeting to order with a prayer by Mrs. Elsie Warren. Secretary - Treasure, Mrs. Violet Wheeler read the minutes of the last meeting.

Rankins then gave a report of the home health center now in operation in Stoddard county.

Mrs. Ruby Hampton, nurses aide, told of the training program they have completed. They work in the homes giving care to those in need. She explained, the plans to give immunization shots to the children age six weeks to six years at each neighborhood service center with the help of the doctors in the county. These will be of low income families taken from the surveys made by the center.

Plans were discussed for a youth program this summer, and a meeting has been set for the board members and other interested persons to work together and come up with a good program to serve the youth in this area.

The possibilities of a senior citizen program being added to the NSC was discussed and the in kind needed to take care of the nonfederal share for the CAA.

The CAA is now located in the old Gray Ridge high school. There has been a community room added to the center so people in the community can use it when needed. There is also a thrift shop which is open every day to the public and a sewing room where the volunteers meet and quilt and sew. Any women who wish to join the Volunteers in the Community Service can come any day of the week.

The next CAA meeting will be in the community room June 26 at 8:30 p.m. An open house is planned.

If someone is eligible for these immunizations and the center does not have a survey on them, he may notify the coordinator, Joan Peters, and someone will make the arrangements for the immunization.

New Center for Bell City CAA

BELL CITY -- The regular meeting of the community action agency was Tuesday at the school cafeteria with 35 attending.

President C. G. Lemmons reported that the CAA office has been moved to the Truman school building where better facilities are available. The building is rent - free, but the CAA pays for utilities.

Three rooms and the offices are being used.

Mrs. Clarence Wingfield, home health aide and Mrs. John Talley gave reports on health aides. Mrs. Talley exhibited supplies that had been issued to each home health aide.

The aides' services will be under the supervision of the doctors of those persons being treated.

Miss Minnie Pullen submitted her resignation as an aide.

Paul Barks, coodinator, gave a report on two programs being discussed for this area. A recreation program funded by the state would provide $4,000 for the area. A recreational director and an assistant would be employed. Approval of the program is expected soon.

A senior citizens program for the six counties served by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation would serve persons over age 50. Funds for this program would total $144,000.

Appointed to a committee to study the recreation program were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Strobel, Forrest Jackson, J. C. Pullen Jr., Robert Scherer and Mrs. C. G. Lemmons, chairman.

Wayne French explained the importance of the local board in the poverty program, and Barks reported on the sewing project and the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

Serving this summer in the NYC will be Marvena King, Sue Chapman, Karen Green, Mark Newton, Gus Byrd and Billy Dogan.

U.S. Bonds Best Sellers

United States Savings Bonds remained on the best seller list during April.

Sales for the first four months of 1967 rose four per cent higher than sales for a similar period a year ago.

In Scott county sales for April amounted to $18,787, according to Donald Bohannon, county Savings Bonds chairman. That brought the total sales here thus far in 1967 to $107,979. This is 16.5 per cent of the county's 1967 quota.

On the state level, a total sales of $13,086,917 was reported in Missouri for April by John L. Wilson, state chairman. Total sales in the state for the fourth month period amounted to $54,759,076 he said.

Bond sales for other area counties:

Bollinger -- $1,575 last month; $6,711 this year; 13.2 per cent of county quota.

Butler -- $65,925 last month; $121,818 this year; 28.6 per cent of quota.

Cotton Replanted

HAYTI - Farmers entered fields as they became workable. Some producers are replanting cotton for the third time.

Many have abandoned their cotton and are replanting to alternate crops.

Losses to the cotton crop are difficult to accurately estimate, but most sources feel that less than one-half the state's allotted acreage will remain in cotton.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

By Thomas G. Brown

BLOOMFIELD -- Grass and weeds will be a problem in a number of corn fields as a result of the recent rains, and farmers are asking for information concerning chemicals that might be used to control these weeds.

Three chemicals are recommended for post - emergence weed control treatments in corn including 2, 4-D, Atrazine, and Linuron (Larox).

2, 4-D will control only broadleaved weeds and can be used any time there is a broadleaved weed problem except from the beginning of tasseling until after the early dough state. It should be applied at the rate of from one-fourth to one-half pound of actual acid equivalent per acre. The amine formulation of 2, 4-D should be around cotton and other crops highly susceptible to 2, 4-D damage. When ground equipment is used, drops should be used on the sprayer boom if the corn is over 10 inches tall and the weeds are considerably shorter than the corn. Adjust the nozzle height so that the edges of the spray fans cross about 2 1/2 inches above the tallest weeds. The 2, 4-D post emergence treatment often causes temporary brittleness in corn stalks; therefore, it is recommended that corn not be cultivated for at least one week after application. Caution should be exercised in apply 2, 4-D near growing cotton as this crop is often damaged by 2, 4-D.

Atrazine, when applied as a post-emergency spray, will kill existing weeds and grasses up to 1 1/2 inches tall and will give pre-emergence control of those weeds that attempt to come up after it is applied. Over all applications usually give control of annual weeds for the entire season whereas band applications require a number of cultivations to control weeds between the rows. Two pounds of actual chemical per acre will give good weed control on most soils; however, three pounds or more may be necessary on high organic matter, heavy clay soils. Label restrictions limit post-emergence applications to not later than three weeks after planting. Treatment with Atrazine is not fully effective if the soil remains dry for two to three weeks after application. If, by 10 days after application, no significant rainfall has occurred, rotary hoeing will improve the effectiveness of the chemical.

Atrazine residue in the soil may injure small grains on forage crops planted in the fall or spring following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Research results indicate that it is safe to produce corn, cotton, or sorghum on a field the year following an atrazine - treated corn crop. Sorghum can also usually be safely grown the year following treatment if the rate of atrazine application does not exceed two pounds per acre.

Linuron (Larox) can be applied as a directed spray to corn at the rate of two pounds of actual chemical per acre. A wetting agent will improve the effectiveness of this treatment. A surfactant can be used for this purpose at the rate of one-half gallon per 100 gallons of total spray.

Plants' Reaction To Light Studied

COLUMBIA -- Why will one variety of soybeans bloom in the south and not in Missouri?

What makes corn plants put out roots at just the right spot below the ground whether the seed is planted deep or shallow?

Why do some plants fail to bulb in one area and do well in another?

Scientists, reporting at the first National Consumer News Conference of the USDA in Washington D.C. indicate long and tedious research studies are solving this mystery of nature--a certain but complicated reaction to light.

We know about photosyntheus, a plant's use of light to make food. We have observed phototyropium -- the cause of plants bending to light.

Research on the effect of light--or better described as the lack of it -- the length of darkness--indicates certain kinds of light control flowering, bulbing, runner production, root formation, stem and leaf growth and germination.

Florists in the south have extended controlled artificial light even to outdoor acreages of autumn and winter chrysanthemums --where the cash return per square foot would justify the cost --to delay flowering for timed markets.

A poinsetta for example, must have complete and continued darkness for twelve hours each day if it is to flower. Even a minute of light in the middle of each dark period will prevent flowering.

There are many other practical uses of these and other light controls of plant growth as they became better and better understood.

It may become possible to harvest more crops "on command."

Mechanical Cotton Pickers' Use Rises

HAYTI - Missouri farmers harvested 94 per cent of the 1966 cotton crop with mechanical pickers, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture.

This compared with 89 per cent in 1965.

Hand picking accounted for five per cent of all cotton harvested in Missouri and the remaining one per cent was hand snapped.

For the cotton belt, 89 per cent of the 1966 crop was machine harvested, compared with 85 per cent in the previous season. Eight per cent was hand picked, three per cent hand snapped, 61 per cent machine picked, 27 per cent machine stripped, and one per cent machine scrapped or harvested from the ground.

The average charge for ginning and wrapping a 500-pound gross weight bale in Missouri during 1966 was $20.70. In the preceding year, this was $18.82 per bale. The national average cost of ginning and wrapping was $18.30 per bale, an increase of $1 above the 1965 average.

In Missouri last season 1,574 pounds of seed cotton were required for a 500-pound gross weight bale. Hand snapped requirements averaged 2,251 pounds, and machine picked 1,601 pounds.

Missouri ginners purchased 94 per cent of the 1966 crop from growers, compared with 21 per cent purchased by ginners nationally.

The information on harvesting, ginning, and merchandising the Missouri cotton crop was collected by the cotton division of the consumer and marketing service, Hayti, with the cooperation of Missouri ginners.

Youth News & Views

CHARLESTON - Four-H Clubs in Missouri are including many events and activities in the programs to learn more about citizenship. This is reflected by the attendance of nearly 400 Missouri 4-H members who will be attending National 4-H Citizenship Short Courses in Washington, D.C. this summer. These members will represent 89 different countries in the state. The participation from Missouri is the largest of any state in the Union. There have been 7 4-H Club Members from Scott and Mississippi Counties selected to attend the short course scheduled for July 30-August 5. Those seected are:

Mississippi County - Carl Striker, John Plummer, Dennis Rolwing, Linda Halter, and Ronnie Rolwing.

Scott County - LaDonna Reeves, Carol Glueck.

You might ask, "what is a National 4-H Citizenship Short Course?" I'd like to answer this question by stating that the 4-H Citizenship Short Course is an educational program designed to help 4-H members (1) learn the meaning of citizenship (2) understand basic principals of democracy (3) see how democracy operates in meeting the problems today (4) gain inspiration and deeper committment to the democratic way of life and (5) prepare to meet problems facing them as young citizens.

Three main types of experience make up the five day program. These include: (1) assemblies and discussions (2) field trips to many places including the Capitol and the United States Department of Agriculture (3) living and working together as democratic groups with leadership responsibilities.

The Citizenship Short Course is generally held at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C.; however due to the large number attending, some of the short courses will be held at the University of Maryland. The groups of 4-H members from Southeast Missouri will be attending the short course at the University of Maryland. The program, including the field trips, is identical regardless of where the short course is held.

Most of the 4-H members attending are 16 to 18 years of age. Two or three adults accompany each delegation. These are either 4-H Club leaders or County Extension personnel.

Stored Small Grain Must Be Protected

BENTON -- Small grain harvest is "just around the corner." Now is the time to get combines in order and to prepare the grain storage facilities on your farm.

What To Do Before Putting Small Grain in Bins:

1. Clean thoroughly of old grain and plug any holes in the bin.
2. Apply a residual spray to all of the inside surfaces with methoxychlor or malathion. Ordinarily one gallon of spray will cover 1,000 square feet.
3. Never add new grain on top of old grain.
4. Use an anticoagulant rodenticide regularly.
5. Check moisture content before storing grain (For farm storage the moisture content should be 13% or less).

Apply only premium grade malathion formulated specifically for use as a grain protectant. This can be applied as a spray or dust as the grain is elevated into storage.

1. Use 1 pint 57% premium grade malathion per 1,000 bushels of grain.
2. Mix this with a convenient amount of water (usually 2-5 gallons) and apply as the grain is elevated into the bin.

Dust formulations containing 1% premium grade malathion can be used at the rate of 50 pounds per 1,000 bushels of grain.

1. Be sure dusts are specifically labeled for use on the particular grain you wish to protect. Otherwise, the grain may be downgraded because of inert materials.
2. Add dust to the grain as it comes from the combine hopper, or as it is elevated into the bin.

After binning, cap out the grain by treating the surface grain with the protectant, and spray the bin above the grain. This helps protect against a build -up of Indian meal moth.

1. Use 1/2 pint 57% premium concentrate in 1 to 2 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet of grain surface area.
2. Or use 30 pounds of 1% premium grade malathion dust per 1,000 square feet of grain surface area.

Forcing air-particularly heated air --- through the binned grain will largely nullify the effects of the grain protectant.

Grain treated with malathion as recommended can be safely fed or sold at any time after treating.

Fumigate wheat 6 to 8 weeks after putting it in storage if malathion grain protectant is not used.

Follow the instructions on the label of the fumigant container in regard to recommended rates and precautions.

WENDELL CHOATE, Charleston, a director and former president of Missouri Cotton Producers Association, spoke at a farm policy conference at the Carrollton high school. Choate said farmers pay the domestic price and sell for the export price. He explained that Bootheel farmers are moving acreage from cotton to vegetables and called for regulation of vegetable imports. On the left is Fred V. Heinkel, Columbia, president of the Missouri Farmers Association. The conference was called by the United States department of agriculture.

Basic Forecast Most Commonly Used by People

Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- The basic forecast is the most commonly used item transmitted over the ESSA weather wire service.

Missouri has been divided into 13 zones, each including several counties in which weather conditions are usually similar. Forecasters concentrate upon these zones when predicting changing weather conditions and write their forecasts for the entire state of Missouri. The seven southeast counties of Missouri are included in zone 13, and this is the forecast commonly read for the Bootheel.

Residents of the Bootheel may have friends, farming interests, or travel plans in areas other than Southeast Missouri. Consequently, zone forecasts are transmitted over the ESSA Weather Wire Service for southern Illinois, and northern Arkansas. State forecasts are transmitted for states surrounding Missouri, including Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee and northern Mississippi.

In general, this type of forecast covers a period from 36 to 48 hours and includes references to precipitation, cloudiness and temperatures. Severe storms are emphasized in all forecasts. Zone forecasts include more detail regarding winds and probabilities of precipitation.

These forecasts are released four times each day, about 6 hours apart. This spacing permits the forecaster to update forecasts to account for more rapid or slower movement of weather patterns, and to gradually extend his outlook as the time periods advance. Since we are aware that, at times, conditions can develop or change without advance warning to be included in the scheduled forecast, special revised forecasts are issued and transmitted when needed. It is particularly important to keep informed of forecast revisions when intense winter storms are approaching, or under conditions when severe thunderstorms or tornadoes may develop. However, less violent weather changes may interfere with work or recreation, and plans can be modified more readily if you remain in touch with weather broadcasts.

CHARLESTON - Are you satisfied with what you got for your money last year or last month? Have you been overspending or using poor buying habits? Resolve to cut out shopping sprees, bargains you don't need, and overuse of credit.

If you are not satisfied, set up a new spending plan. Base it on the goals, income, and expenses of your family.

The best way to have money available for major expenses and future goals is to earmark the money before you spend your income. If you wait until the end of the week or month, you may have nothing left to set aside.

Keep your set aside funds separate from your other funds, so you won't be tempted to spend them on impulse. Put them in a savings account or in Government bonds where they will earn interest. Interest on your savings will help them grow.

Designate a small amount of money for emergencies. Examples might be a blown out tire, or a child's broken arm. Your goal for this fund should be half of your year's income, or $3000 to $5000. Work out the amount you need to set aside each year and each month.

Some large expenses occur seasonally. These include taxes, school supplies, insurance, medical checkups, and Christmas gifts. If you set aside a definite amount each month, you spread the cost and have money to meet the expenses when they are due.

If you have debts or past due bills, earmark at least a small amount for debt payment every payday.

Your regular monthly expenses you can estimate quite accurately.

Your day-to-day expenses are your most flexible entries in your spending plan. They are the easiest to cut when you need to economize. If you need to trim them, ask for the bulletin, "Are You A Sharp Shopper?" at your County University Extension Center.

Sen. Edward V. Long

Senator Denies He Aided Hoffa

WASHINGTON -- U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Missouri) on the senate floor answered charges made against him in Life magazine and called for additional funds to carry on his investigations to "expose illegal and unethical investigative techniques by government agencies."

The Senator said, "you will note that there is not one single fact in the article" to substantiate the charge that Long conducted a three-year investigation of electronic snooping in an attempt to help Jimmy Hoffa.

Senator Long said his interest in wiretapping and eavesdropping "goes back a number of years to the very beginning of my service in the Senate."

"During my first year in the Senate, 1961, I was in the forefront of the fight to prevent legalized wiretapping," Long said.

"In these early years, I made numerous speeches and wrote articles for magazines on government snooping. In 1962, I opposed another bill to legalize wiretapping," he told the Senate.

"When I was asked to take over the subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure in 1963, I inherited a file of complaints against Federal agencies for their eavesdropping activities," the Senator said.

"There have been several thousand pages of public testimony before the subcommittee and there is not a single thing in the record which would be of any aid or comfort to Jimmy Hoffa in any shape, fashion, or form," Long said.

Senator Long answered the Life allegation that he had "blunted the drive against organized crime" by noting that Attorney General Ramsey Clark, March 20, 1967, said he did not think that the Right of Privacy bill introduced by Long would "in any way limit the war on organized crime."

The Senator also quoted from a statement by Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover who said:

'All of us consider it a welcome opportunity to have had the privilege of working with you and your staff. I am certainly in accord with objectives of your Committee to establish safeguards and proper controls which will preclude the uncontrolled and indiscriminate use of these investigative techniques.'

The Missouri senator said, "As to the legal fees earned by me during the time I have served in the Senate, it should be noted that I have practiced law for thirty years. Some people apparently value my legal advice and are willing to pay for it."

He said, "I have been scrupulous to see that no conflicts of interest arise and that my duties as a lawyer do not interfere with my Senatorial duties."

Long said, "Not a cent of these legal fees has come either directly or indirectly from Jimmy Hoffa".

"Every cent made from the Practice of law or otherwise has been reported as earned paid in full. The Internal Revenue Service is well aware of this as they have seen fit to run a massive investigation on me, my family, and my close associates," Senator Long said.

"It is somewhat strange that during my entire public life, no innuendos, no insinuations, and no questions have been raised as to the propriety of my business or legal associations. Only when my Subcommittee exposed certain unlawful activities on the part of government agencies has been an attempt to smear me personally," he said.

Senator Long pledged "to continue to protect the right of privacy of all our citizens, first by seeking passage of the Right of Privacy Act of 1967 and second, by exposing illegal and unethical investigative techniques by government agencies."

Long introduced a resolution to increase funds for his subcommittee from $165,000 to $200,000. "This increase in funds is made necessary by the very investigation of snooping which has been condemned in Life. The work of the subcommittee is much greater than could be anticipated at the beginning of the year, and I introduce this resolution to ask for funds to carry on our work," the Senator said.

DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD

The attempts to reform the Electoral College System, vital to the Republic, have failed for many years. Now on the verge of success the past failures should be appraised. Plans well intentioned and of substance have been enough different to divide the forces for freedom and prevent the development of a crusade. The Reform activities were confined to Members of Congress, with insufficient activities throughout the nation. Now Senate SJR 86 and House HR 584 are the joint resolution for a Constitutional Amendment, well supported by Members of Congress with diverse philosophies except that they are staunchly for the Congressional District Plan of Two Electors from each State and one Elector from each Congressional District. Many committees of volunteers requiring little expenditure are being organized to support this District Plan Resolution. It if is wrong we should want it to fail; if right to succeed.

Constructively,

Pioneer Class Shortens Route To M.D. Degree

BOSTON (AP) — Stuart E. Siegel remembers a "few times when I fell asleep at my desk." But now only six years after graduation from high school, he will have an M.D. degree.

Siegel and 23 classmates have cut two years off the time normally required to become physicians.

They are the first graduates of Boston University's pioneering program to reduce the length, and cost, of medical education.

"We didn't want to develop something for geniuses — anybody can do that — but a program for the well motivated high school student, in about the top third of his class, who wanted to get on with the show," says Medical School Dean Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh Jr.

"I think we've shown that, for reasonably well motivated students, we can do the job in six years and not sacrifice quality," he says, "although we can't pass final judgment until we see what type of physicians they become."

By taking accelerated courses at the university's liberal arts college in their first two years and by attending summer classes, the students did four years of college work in the equivalent of three scholastic years. At the start of the program's third year, they entered the medical school to follow its regular four-year curriculum.

Each student saved an estimated $2,000 or more, but more important, Ebaugh says, they gained two years to "get started on a career and positions of creativity and responsibility."

Members of this and subsequent six-year groups have done as well, on the average, as students who entered the medical school after college, Ebaugh says.

Siegel, 23, of North Plainfield, N.J., is president of the entire 66-member graduating class, and of two honor societies at the school.

"There were times when you didn't know if you could keep up the work, but I think we've all come through unscathed," he says.

Genius, that power which dazzles mortal eyes,
Is oft perseverance in disguise.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious... think about these things. (Philippians 4:8, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we confess that in most of the hours of our days Thou hast been crowded out of our lives, and that thoughts contrary to the teachings of Thy Son have crept into our minds. Transform us to the end that our lives may be given new direction in keeping with the Father's will. In Thy spirit we ask. Amen.

"Skill is necessary" she said, "and education is the only possible way to obtain it. It gives you the power to gain success and happiness." Turning to her classmates and her audience she said:

"If you went to work at the age of 21 and drew $6,000 annually you would pay your government $40,000 in taxes at your retirement. Are you going to let the world rulers regulate your future, or are you going to give it a hand."

Tom A. Phillips, speaking on "Faith", said:

"We have forgotten our faith in our country. Our nation has faith in you the senior class of 1967. Let us have an open mind, and be tolerant as we approach the future. Never be fond of idleness or prosperity will never be yours. A constant faith and understanding of others is vital in the nation's future."

Charles Stamp, Jr., in an address on "Heritage," said that "it is the family who holds the greatest power on earth."

"The coming generations will play an important part in freedom on a national and state level," he said. "Time is important, and it will mean much to our generation, so I urge all of you to go forth and carry a great reasoning and understanding."

Underwood, whose subject was "Move The Earth," said:

"Accent is on the younger generation and with proper knowledge and guidance we will be able to move the earth in the right direction. It is essential that our heritage and ideas are not wasted. Properly used the world can be made a better place in which to live. I challenge you to take your place as you walk into the future."

The exercises opened with Glenn M. Alsup, president of the senior class, presiding, followed by the processional as the seniors walked to the band stand. The invocation was given by Steve Spear.

The senior inner choir presented a song titled, "Be Thou with us, Lord." The music was written by Bob Williamson, senior of 1963, with words by Patty Lewis, class of 1966, and the soloist part was by Patti McMullin, of class 1967, with Becky Wagner as accompanist.

The concert choir sang and arrangement of "Let Us Break Bread Together." "Moments to Remember," with words by Jeannette Meredith, class of 1967, was sung by the girls inner choir, with Linda Stacy accompanist.

Sally Ann Faulkner, presented Principal Roger Sherman, who announced the two high ranking seniors scholastically.

The class was presented by Supt. of Schools, Lynn Twitty, who was introduced by Doris Jean Ray.

Mary Ann Bruce introduced Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the school board, and Vice President Troy Stephenson, who presented diplomas to school board members who handed them to students.

The benediction was given by Darla Jeanne Scoles, followed by the recessional of "Red and Black" by the sophomore band.

Aqaba, but the Egyptian Middle East news agency said that on orders from the U.S. consul at Port Said, the Green Island changed course for an Ethiopian port. The U.S. Embassy denied any knowledge of the reported change.

Nasser's speech Friday was broadcast by Cairo radio. He said, "We will not back down on our rights in the gulf." If war breaks out, he said, "it will be total war and the objective will be to destroy Israel."

His speech came after Al Ahram, which often reflects Nasser's political thinking, said Egypt had achieved its objectives against Israel and that war would come only if Israel starts it.

"The United States is our enemy," Nasser declared. "Britain is our enemy. Both are taking sides with Israel. So long as they support Israel, they are our enemies. When we are trying to exercise our legal rights, they threaten us with war and say peace is endangered."

He said he hoped all Arab countries around Israel would form a solid front, but conceded there were difficulties with Jordan, Israel's eastern neighbor.

Cairo radio announced that the ex-King Saud of Saudi Arabia has contributed $3 million to the Egyptian army. Meanwhile, troops from his nation, now under his half-brother King Faisal, were reported by Mecca radio to be marching to frontline positions on the eastern shore of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Radio Baghdad reported that Iraq dispatched infantrymen, tanks and artillery into Syria to join more than 40,000 Syrian troops massed along Israel's northeastern border.

Friday, the Moslem sabbath, preachers in Cairo said it was Allah's command that Arab Moslems destroy Jewish Israel. In Damascus, one Moslem leader urged Syrians to "seek martyrdom and wash away with your blood the 19-year-old disgrace in Palestine." Israel was formed of Palestinian land in May 1948.

The Moslem religious organization Jamiatil Ulemae Islam in Pakistan said it told Nasser it is ready to send 5,000 volunteers to fight Israel.

The first group of American Embassy wives and children evacuated from Cairo arrived in Athens Friday night. About 118 foreigners who live in Israel arrived in Rome on a plane with 21 wives and children of personnel in the U.S. Embassy at Tel Aviv. The State Department ordered about 500 dependents of embassy personnel to leave Egypt and Israel.

Police and firemen in Beirut broke up an attempted demonstration by about 2,000 students denouncing the United States for supporting Israel.

In the upper house of India's Parliament, Foreign Minister M.C. Chagla came under fire for saying India supports Nasser's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Chagla defended his stand. He said it was in India's interest to "stand by our best friend in Arabia."

The Soviet view was presented at a rare news conference, where a spokesman said France's proposal for a Big Four peace effort "is being considered" in the Kremlin. The proposal would involve the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France.

Informants in Cairo said Thursday Nasser had reacted favorably to a proposed Big Four peace effort. But a broadcast by Damascus radio said Syria, Egypt's chief ally, had rejected the idea.

"The Arabs no longer accept guardianship on the Middle East by anyone," the broadcast said.

During a speechmaking visit to Des Moines, Iowa, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said, "Everybody should counsel everybody to keep calm and moderate in this serious situation, but I don't feel it is incumbent upon us to assume responsibility for restraining one of the parties."

He had been asked about the Soviet statement that the Western powers should restrain Israel.

In Washington, Al Ahram's claim that the Strait of Tiran was mined led to discussion among experts on how Egypt could use mines to block Israeli shipping and still not interfere with Arab vessels.

They mentioned two ways—furnishing a pilot to guide friendly ships through the minefield or using mines that would be set off electrically from shore.

Soybean Seed Should Be Innoculated

BLOOMFIELD -- Soybeans can produce approximately 70 per cent of their own nitrogen from the air if properly inoculated with nitrogen - fixing bacteria and soil PH is between 6.0 and 7.0, according to John G. Yount, extension farm management agent.

Always inoculate soybean seed before planting if it has been more than five years since inoculated soybeans were grown on the field. Be sure to use the correct bacteria inoculate made specifically for soybeans.

This will be extremely important on those fields that have grown cotton or corn for several years that in 1967 will be planted to soybeans. In fact this could be the difference between 15 and 35 bushel of soybeans per acre.

Plant 10-12 seeds per foot of row when using seed with a germination of 90% or better, according to John G. Yount, Extension Farm Management Agent. Recommended varieties planted in 36-40 inch rows will require 35 to 45 pounds of seed per acre. When planting on heavy gumbo soils, or deep planting is necessary to reach moisture 50 to 60 pounds of seed per acre may be advisable.

Seeding rate also depends on variety or size of seed, width of row, and germination of seed. The general recommendation is to plant one viable seed per inch of row. This should give 6 to 8 plants per foot of row. Close spacing encourages rapid growth of soybeans and aids in weed control, but spacing closer than one inch may seriously increase lodging.

N.Y. Meter Maids Land In Squabble

NEW YORK (AP) — The ladies wear sensible oxfords, tuck their hair under visored caps, and carry their parking tickets in little leather pouches slung bandolier-style over their uniformed shoulders. Gently, fondly at first, the city called them meter maids.

The idea was to bring the woman's touch to the job of lifting windshield wipers and snapping overtime parking tickets underneath.

Somewhere, though, public relations apparently went wrong and many New Yorkers began saying the women were arrogant and over-zealous.

Wednesday, the insults got to the meter maids. More than half the 200-woman squad stayed home, demanding that they be allowed to work in pairs. Their complaint was harassment not only from civilians but their supposed comrades in arms— the police.

"It's the public that is often antagonistic, abusive and takes liberties that it would not take with anyone else in uniform," one meter maid said. "Sometimes individual policemen are not too sympathztic either."

Hannah Clemons charged this week that a uniformed patrolman shoved her, scatched her hands and tore up her summons book when he thought she was writing a summons for a motorist. The meter maid filed an assault complaint.

A week earlier, a meter maid charged that a driver beat her and broke her nose to the shouts of "Ole!, Ole!" from an enthusiastic crowd in a Spanish-speaking neighborhood, but the allegation was thrown out of court.

The incidents, however, led to the wildcat strike and apparently a reassessment of the meter maids' worth by their boss, Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes. He said the city might just be better off without them and that the police could take over their jobs.

Negotiators for the city and the women reached a tentative agreement that pairs would be assigned to some heavy traffic areas, but the traffic department ruled out a city-wide buddy system as too expensive.

The compromise did not suit all the ladies and a number said they would continue not reporting for work.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE JEALOUS HUSBAND

As a used car salesman, Barney had many dealings over the years with Gruesome Gus. Sometimes, the deals were consummated at Barney's office and sometimes it was necessary for Barney to ink the deal at Gus's home.

Now, Gus's wife was as gruesome to look at as Gus was himself. But, in Gus's eyes, Jayne Mansfield couldn't hold a candle to her. As a result, he was extremely jealous and imagined that someone was carrying on with her behind his back. When he decided, that the someone was Barney, he let poor Barney have it right between the eyes.

When the smoke cleared, Barney's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workman's Compensation Law.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Barney's death didn't arise out of his employment. He was shot by a jealous husband."

"If it wasn't for his job," responded Barney's widow, "he'd never have gotten involved with a nut like Gus. Therefore, I'm entitled to be paid."

When the award wasn't forthcoming, Barney's widow took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you sent Barney's widow home empty handed?

This is how the Judge ruled: Barney's widow collected. The Judge held that Barney's visits to Gus's home, in the course of his employment, helped create the impression in Gus's mind that innocent Barney was having an affair with his wife; that, therefore, there was a casual connection between Barney's work and "the accident" sufficient to conclude that his death did arise out of his employment so as to meet the requirements of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

(Based upon a 1967 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

TODAYS LEGAL POINTER:

When hiring a painter, bricklayer or anyone else to do work around the home, etc., make sure he has workmen's compensation, insurance, etc., in case there is an accident and someone is injured on the job.

(For personal guidance, see your local attorney)

ANN LANDERS
Answers
Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: What does a woman do when she reaches her 40th birthday and suddenly realizes she doesn't like herself?

I don't like working so hard to be cordial to friends when deep down I resent them for reasons which don't make sense. I don't like the way I have blamed others for my failures. I don't like the casual manner in which I have passed on petty gossip that should have stopped with me.

Is it possible to make one's self over? Could I change? What do you say, Ann Landers? --- TOO WELL-KNOWN TO SIGN INITIALS

Dear Well-Known: Of course you can change, and you've already taken the most important step --- recognizing the need to change and wishing to do so.

You seem filled with hositlity. Do you know why? And toward whom? Talk this out with someone whose job it is to listen. When your unload those ugly feelings you will no longer be compelled to punish your family and friends. You will like yourself better and find it easier to be civil and perhaps even gracious to those around you.

Dear Ann: I love my husband very much, but he is driving me crazy.

Paul is a dentist. He receives dozens of professional journals, advertising flyers and countless boxes of samples and "gifts" from pharmaceutical houses. This junk is sent to his office, but he brings every bit of it home. Every night he hauls in more paraphernalia, and now I can't even set up an ironing board or a sewing machine in what was supposed to be my work room. His library is so crammed full of trash I have given up trying to clean it. He has ordered me not to touch anything.

Paul has promised dozens of times to sort things out but he never gets around to it. In the meantime, I am ashamed to have guests over and I'm drowning in junk.

What's the answer? --- CROWDED

Dear Crowded: Do you have fire insurance? If you don't have it, you should. ask your insurance man to look at your place. A call from him might inspire Pack-Rat Paul to get rid of at least some of the junk. If this doesn't work, resign yourself and accept, with grace, that which you cannot change.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 and have no way of earning money for gifts, records, movies and little extras. I spoke to my father about this several months ago. We agreed that I would do certain chores around the house and receive an allowance. It started out fine but my father has gotten into the habit of borrowing money from me and not paying it back. Right now he owes me $7, and I don't think I will ever see it again.

Do you have any suggestions on how to get him to give me the money? Please don't say I am lucky to have an allowance, because I really deserve it. Thank you. --- BROKE

Dear Broke: There's no way I know of to get your $7 back unless your father decides to repay it -- and I certainly hope he does. A father who welches sets a mighty poor example.

In the future, deposit your money in a savings account where it will draw interest and not be available for "loan."

Do you feel ill at ease . . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ALL POLISH ON SHOES

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique AP -- An immaculate white stocking is the symbol of the Lourenco Marques Bootblack Association.

Senior members of the 20-year-old private association test any would - be bootblacks' abilities before authorizing him to use the blue shirt and shorts, "official" uniform of the profession.

"All our members must know how to shine, brush and polish with expert efficiency. But more than that," the Association's president, Mussaune Ulale, said recently.

"He must prove he can polish a shoe without staining in the least a customer's white stocking," he added.

A Lourenco Marques bootblack charges each client 2.5 escudos (9 cents). Senior members have the exclusive concession of the more crowded cafes while newcomers have to toil many years in "second rate" areas, making an average 20 escudos (70 U.S. cents) a day.
